FRANCE.

Apprehended Revolution on the Death of the Emperor—Another Alliance Hinted at—The Paris Murder.

LONDON, Sept 27.—The Daily News to-day reports that the object of Lord CLARENDON's visit to Paris was to announce to NAPOLEON an arrangement between Austria, Prussia, Russia and England to preserve peace and check the contagion of revolution in France in case of the Emperor's death, but not to thwart German unity.

PARIS, Sept. 27.—The mystery of the recent family murder approaches a solution. The bodies of the father and eldest son have been discovered near the spot where the mother and the other children were found.

Father Hyacinthe's Case.

PARIS, Sept. 27.—Reports from Rome state that the case of Pere HYACINTHE will be submitted to canonical investigation, which will probably result in excommunication.

GREAT BRITAIN.

The Relations with the United States—The Puget Sound Negotiation.

LONDON, Sept. 27.—The Times, in an editorial on the relations of England and the United States, says: "The progress and result of the negotiations on the Puget Sound question show that Americans and Englishmen keep sufficiently above the mists of national prejudices and apply the common principles of equity to the settlement of international disputes. The work was a trying one for the arbitrators. Any decision would have been satisfactory. The actual one is not unsatisfactory. The most agreeable feature of this negotiation is the judicial temper displayed by the gentlemen conducting the inquiry. The San Juan and the Alabama difficulties are the only questions now left outstanding. These, if ever brought to arbitration at the same hands, could scarcely resist the anxiety to observe the terms of their commission, by doing justice and equity without fear, favor or affection for their own country, which has distinguished the arbitrators of this claim."

The Cotton Question—The Times on the State of the Trade.

LONDON, Sept. 27.—The London Times of to-day, in an article on the cotton question, says: "If cotton is dear with its increased production because of new spinning countries bidding against us, then the Liverpool quotations are unintelligible. If spinners not only carry off the raw material, but curtail their demands for our manufactures, the state of trade is unintelligible also. On these suppositions it is useless to cry for more and cheaper cotton, the evil arising only from the loss of the monopoly. The cotton demand is limited, and competitors diminish our share of the manufacture. We cannot discern that cotton at sixpense per pound would bring trade back to England. We lost it by the loss of the raw material; but since then so many events have occurred affecting this great industry that it is necessary to distribute or apportion their several results in the state of things before us."

Mr. Gladstone and the Fenian Prisoners—Jefferson Davis.

LONDON, Sept. 27.—Mr. GLADSTONE, in reply to a petition for amnesty to the Fenians, promises to submit the petition to the Queen, but does not pledge the Government to any particular action on the subject. He acknowledges the soundness of judgment exhibited by the petitioners in attaching the true character to the offences committed.

JEFFERSON DAVIS sailed for America on Saturday in the steamer Baltimore.

Irish Affairs.

LONDON, Sept. 27.—Meetings have been held at Dublin, Roscommon and Cork in favor of amnesty to the Fenians.

A meeting in support of tenant rights has been held at Maryborough.

The Harvard Crew and Their Boat Gift.

LONDON, Sept. 27.—The Telegraph of to-day says: "The present by the Harvard crew of their boat to the London Rowing Club was far outdone by the spirit in which it was given; and it is sure to be regarded less as a trophy than as a token turned, by the skill and grace of the vanquished, into a pledge of kindly brotherhood."

ITALY.

Mount Vesuvius in a State of Eruption.

FLORENCE, Sept. 27.—Mount Etna is in a state of violent eruption. The streams of lava are pouring from the crater into the Val Duc.

CUBA.

The Jordan Surrender Story—Other Insurgents Said to be Treating with the Authorities—Ships at Havana—The Sugar Crop.

HAVANA, Sept. 27.—The telegram sent from Havana on Saturday last, relative to the surrender of General JORDAN and his troops upon the payment by the Government of a certain sum of money, was based upon official dispatches.

It is reported that the insurgents in the neighborhood of Yaguaramas and Pais, and between Cienfuegos and Colon, are treating with the Spanish authorities relative to surrender. Their surrender is important, if true, the rebel bands in this quarter being nearest to the sugar districts of Colon and Cardenas.

The number of shipping in the ports of Havana is twenty-five ships and barks, thirty-one brigs and eight schooners.

The exports of sugar from Havana and Matanzas during the past week foot up 14,000 boxes and 1,000 hogsheads to foreign ports, and 7,000 boxes to the United States. The sugar stock in warehouses in Havana and Matanzas amounts to 214,000 boxes and 3,000 hogsheads.

THE CUBAN QUESTION.

The London Morning Post on the Subject—A Difficult Game.

LONDON, Sept. 27.—The Morning Post to-day has a letter from its Paris correspondent, wherein the Cuban question is discussed at length. The writer says the interest in the matter is increasing in Paris, but the public must not expect to learn precisely the intercourse between Madrid and Washington. There is a difficult game to be played, in order to avoid wounding Spanish pride.

Admiral ELLMS and other officers of the Haytian navy also go to the United States for the purpose of bringing out the iron-clad Atlanta, recently purchased by the Government.

The steamers Salnave and Galatea took Fort Liberty, near Cape Hayti, after a short engagement, and it is expected that Aux Cayes will soon surrender to the legitimate Government.

There were only three passengers on board, who with the crew took to the lifeboats. One of the boats in charge of HENRY ARNOLD, a colored pilot of Belize, with four persons, including two of the passengers, reached the Southwest Pass bar yesterday. They parted company with the other boats on Friday evening, and did not see them afterward. The weather was very rough at the time the boats got separated. A steamer has gone in search of the missing boats.

NEW-ORLEANS, Sept. 27.—There are no further tidings of the Trade Wind's boats. The roughness of the Gulf causes apprehension for their safety.

THE AVONDALE FUND.

Election of Officers of the Board of Trustees—The Plan of Distribution Adopted.

PLYMOUTH, Penn., Sept. 27.—The Trustees of the Avondale Relief Fund for Widows and Orphans met to-day at Plymouth and adopted a plan for the distribution of the funds that reach them. After taking the oath required by the rules and regulations, the Trustees elected E. C. WADHAMS, President; H. GAYLORD, Treasurer; and WILLIAM L. WILSON, Secretary and Disbursing Agent. The report and rules and regulations, as adopted, acknowledge that the fund is specific and is given solely for the aid and relief of those persons who survive the appalling death, which involved husbands, fathers, brothers and sons in the dark chambers of the Avondale Colliery; to them alone the benefit of a generous and prompt public contribution belongs; to no other charity, present or prospective, shall any of the fund be assigned. The plan of distribution for the first year is as follows: Each widow will be paid the sum of $200 in equal monthly payments; each male orphan child under 14 years of age and each female orphan child under 16 years of age shall be paid for the same period $100 in the same manner. Children over the ages mentioned will be paid in full a sum not exceeding $300; $5,000 were voted to meet special cases not embraced in the foregoing. These provisions are made for aid and relief till the 1st day of October, 1870, and will absorb all but $40,000. The remainder of the fund is to be carefully invested in good securities that can be converted into cash when required, and to constitute a permanent fund, divisible upon the following basis: One-third to constitute a widows' fund and the remaining two-thirds an orphans' fund. From these funds widows and orphans are to receive quarterly payments until the whole is exhausted. The report and rules in extenso will be furnished the city Press for publication in a day or two. Colonel H. B. WRIGHT, who prepared the report and rules, was continued as Chairman of the Executive Committee. The bonds of the Treasurer were fixed at $50,000. The Board adjourned to meet at Plymouth, Saturday, Oct. 16, 1869.

INDIAN OUTRAGES.

Operations in New-Mexico—Herd Boys and Woodchoppers Attacked—Several Indians Killed by the Latter.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Advices received by the Indian Department from Fort Stanton, New-Mexico, represent that the Mescalero Apache Indians are still on the war path. The citizens of San José, New-Mexico, report that a party of five or six of this tribe attacked four boys, who were herding sheep near that town, on the evening of the 10th of August. Two of the boys escaped; one was killed on the spot, and one (FRANCISCO BLEA, aged 13 years) was carried into captivity. The Indians also captured 3,000 head of sheep about thirty miles south of San José. These were subsequently recaptured by a party of citizens. The country inhabited by these Indians is so rough and mountainous that it is difficult to find them.

Official information has also been received confirmatory of the report of the killing of four men (woodchoppers) at Fort Buford. They were in the employ of a contractor from St. Paul. The men made a hard fight, and, it is thought, killed several Indians. One dead Indian was left on the ground. Recently the Uncapapas drove off the ponies, twenty in number, of the Indian scouts, at Rice River. The Indians in the vicinity of Fort Sully are very quiet.

WASHINGTON.

The Order to Sell Four Millions of Gold—The True Version of its Origin—The Proposed American Cable—The Oats Crop.

Special Dispatches to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—The falsehood was telegraphed North from this city on Friday night that Secretary BOUTWELL refused to consent to the extra sale of gold until ordered by the President, and that the latter was persuaded into compliance by the appeals of prominent banking houses. Your correspondent stated the general facts as they were in his dispatches on the same evening; but as the false statement has been reiterated it is well to give the facts in greater detail. The Secretary had, as usual, given no person whomsoever any indication of what his action would be, although he did determine on Friday morning, of his own accord, in view of the serious manner in which the public finances were being affected, to order an extra sale of several millions. With this resolution matured he left his office at 11 o'clock to consult the President and ascertain his views. As he entered, the latter himself introduced the subject, and Mr. BOUTWELL remarked: "That is just what I have come to see you about." The President then observed that he much preferred to avoid interfering, and to await the issuance of the order in the regular course, on Sunday evening, the 26th inst., for the October sales; but matters had assumed such a serious aspect, and so much damage was being done to the revenues and the Government credit, that if five millions would break up the Ring, he thought it wise to try it. The Secretary coincided, though he thought five millions was more than was necessary. The President then suggested three millions, and Mr. BOUTWELL said he had thought of making it four millions, which was approved, and the Secretary returned to his office and wrote the telegraphic order to the Assistant Treasurer. No personal appeal whatever was made to the President by the banking house alluded to, and no order was given to the Secretary. This particularity of detail becomes necessary only because the facts in the case have been falsified with an apparently malicious purpose. The simple truth is that while the action in question was unconstrained on the part of both the President and Secretary, except so far as the circumstances affected the public credit, they nevertheless would both have preferred, had it been advisable, to have given no order until the regular one of last night. But they were in accord in what they did. Their respective judgments as to what was best to do were coincident, and neither had to persuade the other.

THE AMERICAN ATLANTIC CABLE.

The movement to organize a company for the purpose of laying a distinctively American cable between the United States and Europe appears to be gaining strength, and it would appear as if the enterprise was already somewhat of a success. A gentleman arrived here to-day from New-York and filed with the Postmaster-General an agreement to abide by whatever conditions the Government may impose, under the Cable laws between the United States and foreign countries. The intention of the Company is, it is said, to land the Old World end in Germany.

HAMILTON, of Texas; Mr. BATLES, who was Postmaster of Louisville for a day, and Colonel HAGGERTY, who was Consul at Glasgow until he arrived there.

Mr. Peabody's Gift to Washington College.

From the New-Orleans Picayune, Sept. 22.

A letter, of 15th inst., from J. M. LEECH, Esq., clerk of the Faculty of Washington College, to ROBERT M. LUSHER, Esq., agent of the Peabody fund for this State, announces that Mr. PEABODY has placed the bonds donated in the hands of a gentleman of high repute, for the enforcement and the employment of the proceeds for the benefit of the College. They are coupon bonds, worth, with interest, $50,000 or $60,000, which were paid for by Mr. PEABODY and lost at sea, and which, undoubtedly, constitute a just claim against the State of Virginia. They have been regularly reported as part of the State debt, and precedents, old and recent, would justify and require their reissue. Hon. HENRY A. WISE, who was Governor at the time of the loss, considers the claim valid. In the case of an individual or banking corporation, there is no doubt that the Courts would enforce the claim.

Mr. LEECH adds: "It has been assiduously circulated that the claim is worthless, with motives which are certainly not friendly to Washington College, nor to the illustrious donor, who would scorn to mock the College with an empty gift. The great reputation of Mr. PEABODY cannot suffer by the imputation of having offered an idle and meaningless compliment to the cause of Southern education; nor will that cause suffer by the failure of Virginia to recognize her just debts, or of Washington College to use judiciously this munificent donation."

THE GOLD BUBBLE.

The Excitement Subsiding—Activity at the Gold Exchange Bank—Meeting of the Gold Board—Action in the Courts.

Wall-street yesterday resumed something of its ordinary appearance. The fever of the previous days seemed allayed, and men talked and acted with a cooler temper. Along the sidewalks, opposite the Exchange, were crowds of outsiders who appeared to be waiting for something to turn up, but their curiosity was not satisfied.

The centres of interest were the Gold Exchange Bank and the Gold Room, although no business was done at the latter place. In the morning the Gold Board met and held a lively session. Resolutions were moved that all purchases and sales of gold be suspended until to-day, and that all transactions made on Friday be cleared through the Gold Exchange Bank at fixed rates, and the difference be settled by the dealers among themselves. The latter proposition did not meet with favor. The statement of WM. BELDEN & CO. was made the subject of a special resolution: "That non-compliance on the requisition of the Gold Exchange Bank to take up the gold of BELDEN & CO., shall not work a suspension of any one of the Board by such apparent failure."

A committee, appointed to get a copy of their statement, reported the bank's inability to furnish it. After further discussion, and without accomplishing anything, the Board adjourned to this morning.

The Gold Exchange Bank was again besieged yesterday with brokers. At its officers were crowded with work. After being up all night, they found little chance for rest during the day. Up to last evening Friday's statements had been settled, and only the checks remained to be drawn. But for their exhaustion the bank officers would have continued their efforts to regulate matters, by working last night also. They, however, will begin again early this morning, and by noon hope to satisfy all demands.

The bank payments yesterday amounted to $5,000,000 in currency and $2,000,000 in coin.

The following circular from the President of the Bank shows the list of failures resulting from the explosion of last week:

NEW-YORK GOLD EXCHANGE BANK,
NOS. 55 BROADWAY AND 29 NEW-STREET,
NEW-YORK, Sept. 27, 1869.

DEAR SIRS: I hand you inclosed your corrected statement. The following statements of dealers have been rejected from the movement for failure to comply with the rules:

ALBERT SPEYERS,	ZERREGA & GRAVER,
DORNIN & BOOCOCK,	CHASE, MCCLURE & CO.,
GALWEY, HUNTER & CO.,	P. H. WILLIAMS, Jr., & CO.,
WM. BELDEN & CO.,	CHAS. W. KEEP & CO.,
	JAS. BROWN & CO.

Your balances must be made good by 12 o'clock to-day. All accounts not settled at that time will be regarded as failed, for the purpose of clearing. You will be immediately informed of any further default on your statement. Yours, respectfully,

H. M. BENEDICT, President.

A number of injunctions and attachments were issued yesterday by Judge CLERKE, in the Supreme Court, in the following actions growing out of the late gold transactions:

Charles Unger and others vs. William M. Lloyd and the New-York Gold Exchange Bank.—In this case an injunction was issued restraining the defendant, the Bank, from paying over to Lloyd, and his latter instructing, $11,000 of plaintiff's money deposited as security for borrowed gold.

Caldwell Ashworth vs. William C. Dornin and Samuel Boocock, and the New-York Gold Exchange Bank.—An injunction was issued in this case restraining the bank from transferring or mingling with its own funds any balance standing in said bank to the credit of the defendants, Dornin and Boocock.

Caldwell Ashworth vs. The New-York Gold Exchange Bank and the National Bank of Commerce.—An injunction was issued in this case restraining the Bank of Commerce from paying to the Gold Exchange Bank plaintiff's checks for $214,000, unless checks of the Gold Exchange Bank given to plaintiff for $90,000 are offset against plaintiff's checks in the regular Bank Clearing-house. This action is based on the alleged imminent insolvency of the Gold Exchange Bank, and the preceding action on the alleged insolvency of Dornin & Boocock.

In the suits of Hatch vs. Belden and others and Fant vs. The Same, the Court granted attachments on the ground that they were removing their property with intent to defraud their creditors, and were also concealing themselves with intent to avoid service of process. It was understood late in the evening that the attachment had not been executed, and that the defendants would be able to make a satisfactory settlement.

J. Edward Eastman vs. Alexander J. Wood, James G. Rieck and the New-York Gold Exchange Bank.—An injunction was issued in this case, restraining the bank from paying over $5,000 deposited to the credit of the defendants, Wood and Rieck.

Anthony V. B. Van Dyke vs. Dornin & Boocock and the New-York Gold Exchange Bank.—An injunction was issued in this case restraining the bank from paying over to Dornin & Boocock $35,000 belonging to plaintiff, and deposited as security on a gold loan.

Henry C. Hardy & Frederick Hardy vs. Robert Waller and the New-York Exchange Bank.—An injunction was issued in this case restraining the bank from paying over to the defendant the sum of $35,800 75 deposited as security for borrowed gold.

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS—CHAMBERS—SEPT. 27.

SUPPLEMENTAL PROCEEDINGS—CONTEMPT—REFEREE'S POWERS.

Before Hon. George C. Barrett, Judge.

John Laible vs. Philip Meyer.—This case came before the Court on an order to show cause why plaintiff's proceedings should not be stayed, and more particularly why plaintiff should not be restrained from issuing an attachment against the defendant. It seems that in July last judgment was obtained by the plaintiff against the defendant, by default, for the sum of $483, and that execution against the defendant was duly issued to the Sheriff and returned unsatisfied. The plaintiff then applied for an order of reference to examine the defendant in proceedings supplemental to execution. Judge Daly appointed A. B. Sage, Esq., referee, and on the day appointed for the hearing the defendant failed to appear, and the referee returned the papers with his certificate to the Court. An order to show cause, returnable in three days, was then granted by Judge BARRETT, why the defendant should not be punished for contempt, and was duly served on him. Again he failed to appear, and pending the preparation of the warrant of attachment defendant's attorney obtained an order to show cause why the plaintiff should not be restrained from issuing it, and also an order to show cause why the default taken should not be opened and the judgment set aside. After argument Judge BARRETT rendered his decision denying the motion to set aside the judgment, but granted the motion to stay the attachment, providing that the defendant appear before A. B. Sage, Esq., the referee, at his office, on the 28th inst., and submit to examination, and pay referee's fees and costs.

J. H. Cornell, plaintiff's attorney; Otto Meyer, defendant's attorney.

MONDAY, Sept. 27—P. M.

We very much regret to report that affairs in Wall-street are much worse than on Friday and Saturday last. The mischiefs of the Gold Ring explosion developed themselves more signally through the Gold Exchange Bank than at the close of last week. The Gold Room continued their adjournment over to Tuesday, leaving the quotations of Gold to dealers in the street, who reported, at the close [of business, 131@132 ℔ cent. The Gold Exchange Bank made very slow progress in the settlements of clearances. They were chiefly confided to the transactions of Thursday last, about which there was little or no dispute. The complications of Friday—the great panic and explosion day—remain unsolved, and there seems to be an utter want of capacity in the Clearing Bank to comprehend either the difficulties or responsibilities of the situation. Indeed, the hesitation and confusion at Bank to-day was such as to give rise to rumors of its own responsibility, and in any event the prevailing conclqsion is that its usefulness as a clearing office is at an end. Our very latest information this Afternoon is that the Bank is abundantly able to pay all balances growing out of the Gold clearances of Friday, although some committals may have been made in advancing upon the supposed resulting Gold or Currency balances. The Capital of the Bank is $500,000; its Surplus Fund about $150,000. The question of security, however, has been much less canvassed on the Street than the bungling manner in which the clearings of Friday last have been managed, or, to speak more plainly, mismanaged. And this trouble has been the more emphatically dwelt upon on the Street because of the danger of having the whole concern thrown into a Receivership, or into the United States Bankrupt Court. In view of such a contingency, it is much to be desired that in the course of the day on Tuesday the entire clearings of Friday last will have been adjusted.

The troubles in the Gold clearings were not the only drag upon business to-day. The rascally conduct of the Gold Ring in buying Gold at 155@160, and selling through different Brokers at 145@150 ℔ cent. on Friday, has greatly complicated the settlements of the Street growing out of the explosion of that day, and it is sensibly felt that until these settlements are made, and the extent of the frauds upon the Brokers in the shape of orders to buy or sell Gold, which were designed to be recognized only as they might result in profit or loss, there can be no restoration of confidence or steadiness to business. The Gold Exchange Bank is especially blamed for undertaking to arbitrate on the question, and for publishing, or authorizing to be published, the names of firms of the highest respectability as defaulting in their clearings, in other words, for refusing to be swindled where they had bought or sold, or borrowed, or returned Gold to the clique who engineered the attempted corner of last week, and, on failure of the attempt, left their own Brokers in the lurch.

In reference to this matter we are advised by the wealthy and eminently upright house of Messrs. DREXEL, WINTHROP & Co., that they served an injunction upon the Bank against clearing $100,000 in Gold which they borrowed on Friday of one of the Brokers of FISK, Jr., with the express understanding that a mutual deposit of security was to be made in one of the Trust Companies, which was not made on his part before he had left the Street. In the case of Messrs. JAMES BROWN & Co., another respectable firm, an attempt was made, through the Clearing Bank (Gold Exchange Bank) to compel them to take a very large sum of Gold at 150 ℔ cent. which they had previously sold to the Broker of the same party at 160 ℔ cent., and because they refused to be thus victimized, they were published in an official notice from the Bank this morning, that they had failed to make their clearances. We have received the following note from Messrs. BROWN on the subject:

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

The name of our firm having been mentioned in the accompanying circular from the President of the Gold Exchange Bank of this date, we beg to say that the mention of our name therein is a mistake, inasmuch that we publicly announced from the table of the President in the Gold Room on Friday forenoon that we would make our settlement ex-clearing, which we did. How, therefore, our statement could have been rejected, when we never made any, we fail to see. We take this opportunity of saying that, not only have we not failed, but that we are not in any position to do so.

Your insertion of this will oblige yours respectfully, JAMES BROWN & CO.

There was no resumption of payments in full by any of the firms connected with the Gold Ring to-day, as promised on Saturday, and it is extremely doubtful whether they will be suffered to make partial payments and then resume business on the Street, or at the Stock Exchange, or in the Gold Room. The feeling on this point is not only strong, but is backed by legal rights, which the Bankrupt Court of the United States may be invoked to enforce. The palpable acts of bankruptcy committed on Friday afternoon, in at least two instances, would amply justify such a proceeding. We copy in illustration the following from the Sun of this morning:

LIVERMORE & CO., HEATH & CO., AND JAMES FISK, JR.

Many reports have been flying about the City in regard to the transactions in which these parties are concerned. The following is LIVERMORE & CO.'s side of the story:

"This firm have been in the habit of transacting business in the Gold and Stock Exchange for WM. HEATH & CO., and had business pending with them on their books on last Friday morning. On that morning a messenger came to the Gold Room about 9 o'clock with an order to Messrs. LIVERMORE & CO. to buy a million gold at 150. Mr. ALLEN, a member of the firm, to whom the order was given, not recognizing the messenger, at once went over to WM. HEATH & CO.'s office, and saw Mr. QUINCY of that firm, who confirmed the order. Mr. ALLEN then proceeded to the Gold Room and commenced buying gold at 150; and having purchased about $300,000, made his reports to Mr. QUINCY at his office, and Mr. QUINCY told Mr. ALLEN to take all the gold offered at 150 until ordered to stop, which Mr. ALLEN, assisted by Mr. LIVERMORE, did.

Mr. QUINCY afterward visited the Gold Room, and Mr. ALLEN reported to him from time to time, both there and at his office, his progress. He procured nearly $1,000,000, when gold was suddenly advanced by the clique to 155. It remained at that price for some time, when Mr. ALLEN was called to the Board by the same messenger, who whispered in his ear:

"Buy a million up to 160!"

Mr. ALLEN replied that he executed no order unless he knew the prices. The messenger went away and returned a few minutes after with James Fisk's, Jr., written order to buy $1,000,000 up to 160. Mr. ALLEN said:

"I have done no business for JAMES FISK, Jr."

The messenger replied:

"You will find him and GOULD at WM. HEATH & CO.'s. Go over yourself and see them."

He went to WM. HEATH & CO.'s and met both GOULD and FISK. Mr. ALLEN asked FISK if that was his order, showing him his signature. Mr. FISK replied that it was, and asked if he (Mr. ALLEN) had done anything. Upon being answered in the negative, Mr. FISK said:

"Go ahead, and put down what you buy to BELDEN & CO."

Mr. ALLEN answered that he did no business for BELDEN & CO.

"G—d d—n it, then, put it down to this concern," said Mr. FISK.

Mr. QUINCY, of the firm of WM. HEATH & CO., who was standing by and overheard the conversation, acquiesced, and told Mr. ALLEN to put it down to the account of WM. HEATH & CO. Mr. ALLEN immediately went to the Gold Room, bought the gold, and gave the names of those he bought it for.

Ten minutes later the crash came, when WILLIAM HEATH & CO. closed their private offices, and would see nobody. Deputy Sheriffs were stationed at the doors, and would permit no one to go inside. The office from that time until 3:45 was besieged by a multitude of exchange brokers and bankers, all clamorous for the adjustment of their differences. Mr. HEATH finally came out and said that the firm could not pay anything until Saturday morning.

Saturday WM. HEATH & CO. published a card announcing that their business was not interrupted, and would go on as usual. Mr. ALLEN waited on them on Saturday. He found the members of the firm in their office, and was asked by QUINCY if he had gone through all right.

"Certainly," said ALLEN. "I'll make out my clearances with the Gold Bank for the gold bought for and reported to you to-day."

"What gold?" asked Mr. QUINCY, as if astonished.

"The $2,000,000 or thereabouts purchased for you yesterday," answered Mr. ALLEN.

"I gave you no orders to purchase gold. You may have bought some for Mr. FISK," said Mr. QUINCY.

"If that is your little game, and if you intend to repudiate our transactions, I have nothing further to say," said Mr. ALLEN, and left.

Mr. ALLEN says that Mr. HEATH repudiates his contract in the most emphatic terms.

It is stated that JAY GOULD and his Broadstreet firm of SMITH, GOULD, MARTIN & Co. undertake to repudiate all connection with the clique orders of FISK, Jr., of which the foregoing is only one specimen, which we have reason to believe is even less emphatic than the experience of Mr. ALBERT SPEYERS, who was induced to execute much larger orders for FISK, Jr., in the presence of, and as he can bear witness, with the assent of JAY GOULD. And it was under such orders that Messrs. JAMES BROWN & Co. were to be victimized.

The confusion growing out of the Gold Ring explosion of Friday, the undetermined value of the clearings at the Gold Exchange Bank and the various rumors resulting therefrom caused a very heavy feeling and much lower prices at the Stock Exchange. They also induced a gloomy feeling over the whole market, including the Public Funds, and at 6 o'clock P. M. the following quotations were made as compared with Saturday night. The only advance of the day was in the Foreign Exchanges, which is to be welcomed in the present condition of our Export trade, and in view of the importation of $2,000,000 of Gold under the exceptional condition of affairs last week. The prospect is that this Gold will go back to London by the return steamers. It is not wanted here since the explosion of the Gould-Fisk Ring. On the contrary, the Secretary of the Treasury proposes to sell $3,000,000 this week, and $10,000,000 after Friday, Oct. 1, additional in all the month of October, with the purpose to invest the proceeds in United States 5-20s for the Sinking Fund. His advertisement reads as follows:

"The Treasury will make the following purchase of United States Five-twenty Bonds and sales of Gold from this date to Nov. 1 next:

SALES OF GOLD.—Sept. 28, $1,000,000; Sept. 30, $1,000,000; Oct. 1, 5, 8, 12, 14, 15, 19, 22, 26, 28 and 29, $1,000,000 each day.

PURCHASES OF 5-20S.—Sept. 29, $2,000,000; Oct. 6, $2,000,000; Oct. 7, $1,000,000; Oct. 13, $2,000,000; Oct. 20, $2,000,000; Oct. 21, $1,000,000; Oct. 27, $2,000,000.

The first sale of Gold will be made to-morrow, and the first purchase of 5-20s will be made Wednesday."

The First Mortgage Bonds OF THE UNION PACIFIC RAILROAD CO.

INTEREST 6 PER CENT. IN GOLD.

The Union Pacific Railroad has been in successful operation since May 10, and it is pronounced, by the thousands who have passed over it, to be in all respects as safe and well built as any railroad in the country. By the Pullman Palace Cars, the journey is not only made without danger, but without unusual fatigue. The fears that many have expressed in relation to the perils of the overland trip are removed by experience, and the travel is steadily increasing.

The earnings of the road since its opening are officially stated by the Company as follows:

From May 10 to May 31	$391,420 12
From June 1 to June 30	705,602 29
From July 1 to July 31	823,559 96

Notwithstanding the rates for passengers and freight have been largely reduced, the earnings for August will be at about the same average. They will be published as soon as full returns are received. The earnings, as stated above, are at an average of about

EIGHT MILLION DOLLARS A YEAR,

Which will be steadily augmented by the development of the Pacific Coast, by settlement along the line, and by the natural increase of traffic.

The First Mortgage Bonds of the Company amount to $28,816,000, and the interest liability to $1,728,960 gold, or about $2,334,096 in currency. It will be noticed that the present earnings provide an ample fund for the payment of this interest and leave a large surplus. We are also satisfied that at present market rates, these bonds are a very desirable investment, and that they will advance in price as soon as the facts concerning the business and condition of the Company are generally understood.

THE LAND GRANT BONDS

To the amount of Ten Million Dollars, were issued to obtain means to finish the road, and are secured by

A FIRST MORTGAGE

Upon the entire Land Grant of the Company, amounting to 12,824,000 acres. Three million acres of this land in the Platte Valley, in Nebraska, are admitted to be equal to any in the West. The sales of land were opened in Omaha July 27, and 40,000 acres were sold during a month thereafter, at an average price of over $5 per acre. While a part of the remainder of the land is of little value for agricultural purposes, there is another part from which a considerable sum will be realized. The value of the Land Grant is largely enhanced by the extensive coal mines, which are now being worked for the supply of the surrounding country, as well as for the railroad, and by other valuable mineral deposits, especially of copper.

THE LAND GRANT BONDS ARE RECEIVED in payment for all the Company's lands, at par, and the demand from actual settlers will give them a certain market. They run twenty years, and pay seven per cent. interest in currency.

Although the Company have disposed of all their bonds, yet as they are offered in market, we continue to fill orders at the current rates.

We have no hesitation in recommending both the First Mortgage and the Land Grant Bonds as a very valuable and perfectly safe investment.

EUROPE.

The London Times of yesterday, in an editorial, commends the spirit displayed in settling the Puget Sound question between the United States and England, and says that the Alabama and San Juan questions, the only ones now outstanding between the two countries, if left to the same arbitrators, could be settled on the principles of justice and equity without fear, favor or affection.

The game is a difficult one to be played to avoid wounding Spanish pride.

The reported offer of General JORDAN to surrender his troops is said to have been founded upon official dispatches.

It is stated in a Havana dispatch that several bands of insurgents are treating with the Spanish authorities with a view of surrender, which, if true, is said to be important, from the location of the districts.

GENERAL.

The steamship Trade Wind, which left New-Orleans on the 22d inst. for Balize, Honduras, went down at sea on the 24th. The War-Cloud in Europe.

The grand structure of German unity is the central frame round which the policy of Europe for the moment turns.

National unity is intrinsically a noble idea, and, wherever you find it, it appeals to all generous sympathies—unity in America; unity in Italy; unity in Germany. But complete German unity is not to be secured, probably, without heroic struggle. European interests are so complex, the jealousies of contiguous States so strong, and the ambition of sovereigns and populations to keep their heads above those of their neighbors, so towering, that the peace of Europe cannot be long assured. It is accepted as a settled truth, that the aspirations of the German nation are for unity of political administration, and that to bring this result about, no reasonable sacrifice will be shunned. It is this question which threatens Europe with its next wars;—struggles of nationalities and of preponderance.

A pamphlet has just been printed at Pesth, written by a statesman understood to be conspicuously connected with public affairs in the Austrian-Hungarian State, and himself a Hungarian, which illustrates how public attention in Europe is preoccupied with war-like possibilities. The pamphlet is entitled "The Neutrality of Austria and Hungary in a Future War," and its views are so marked and significant as to deserve attention. The writer protests against the supposition that Hungary would be glad to see the German element in Austria once more weakened, or that this German element feels itself so wronged by the settlement of 1867, as to be disposed to try to undo it. Difficulties certainly exist between Germans and Hungarians; but these are family quarrels, to be put by the moment the monarchy is menaced from without. And the reason lies in the fact that, after the loss of the Italian provinces, "no peril could threaten the Monarchy that would not be equally fatal to both sides." Hungary would probably see, without objection, Prussia extend and consolidate her dominion in Germany, if it could be done without offence to the integrity of the Austrian-Hungarian Monarchy; but the writer does not admit the possibility of this. Prussia cannot annex Southern Germany without, at the same time, conquering Austrian provinces; and Prussia cannot risk a war with France without first being sure of the attitude of Austria.

Two paths are open to Prussia. She can hold the Austrian-Hungarian Monarchy in check with the aid of Russia, or she may seek to gain to herself the sincere friendship of this Monarchy. But Prussia cannot pledge herself to this second course, because she cannot and will not offer a guarantee that, after the South of Germany is digested, she will not attack Austrian Germany. Besides this, Prussia is "the ferocious and irreconcilable enemy of the liberal ideas which every day are developing themselves in the Austrian-Hungarian Monarchy." These are the causes of the strained relations between Vienna and Berlin. And it is precisely for such reasons that the situation assumes an extremely menacing character for the North German State, in case of war between Prussia and France.

Such a war is inevitable the moment Prussia puts her hand upon Southern Germany.

Prussia cannot, in the event of war with France, support the neutrality of Austria and Hungary; since, however benevolent and impartial such neutrality might be, it would paralyze completely the forces of Prussia as respects France. A corps of observation stationed in Bohemia would oblige Prussia to employ at least 300,000 soldiers of her army to cover her flank on the side of Austria. In that case, she would be too weak on the side of France. But, "supposing the improbable case of a victory in the west, with a weakened army," the gain would be small, since, threatened on her flank, she would not be able to go far from Berlin, her base of operations. In case of being beaten by France, she would be menaced with annihilation.

The author of the pamphlet infers, from certain Prussian assertions, that, as concerns Gallicia, an understanding exists between Prussia and another State, on the basis that the Austrian-Hungarian Monarchy is an obstacle, by its position, to the realization of combinations having reference to the East. Accordingly Austria is to be thrust into war, so as to have a freer field for action in the West. It gives Prussia little concern that the interests of Central Europe are disturbed by a war on the Bosphorus and the lower Danube. Let Russia begin a war in the East, and Prussia will charge herself with the invasion of Bohemia. The talk is of sacrificing what remains of Polish independence, under the Hapsburg-Loraine sceptre, and when this wretched purpose is brought about; when the treaty of Paris is torn to pieces at the mouth of the Danube' victorious Prussia would "have upon her conscience the fourth partition of Poland, and be responsible, also, for perils to the constitutional principle, but with sufficient power to pronounce, at the decisive moment, a word of authority upon the Oriental question."

The writer tries to prove that, as soon as Russia begins her war upon Austria, Turkey, Italy and England will range themselves on the side of the former; and he adds the assertion that an understanding to this effect already exists. Neither Italy nor England can permit Russia to establish herself on the Bosphorus, or exercise an unlimited influence over the Christian races of that peninsula. When Prussia shall induce Russia to enter the list to oppose Austria, a general European war will follow; and, in this war, all the forces of Europe, except those of Greece, Romania and Servia, will march against Prussia and Russia. Then follows, in this striking pamphlet, an estimate of the number of men which each can bring into the field—Austria and Hungary, 800,000 men; Italy, 150,000: Turkey, 148,000: in all, 598,000 men. To this force Russia, with Romania, could not at first make opposition with more than 300,000 troops. The struggle would terminate to the disadvantage of Russia in the East; so much the more certainly on account of Poland weakening her power. On the part of Prussia in the West, "our forces suffice to hold her in a respectful position." The Prussian army for active service, comprising the forces of Southern Germany, is calculated at 598,000 men. From this it is necessary to deduct the Corps of Observation against Austria; a body for the defence of the Northern coast, and another for Southern Germany, as well as troops for garrison and reserve duty. Thus, calculating the force of Prussia most favorably, it will be found, for active operations, much inferior to that of France. In fine, Austria, in case of war, is in condition "to act, even as a neutral power, a very decisive part."

The pamphlet closes with this summing up:

"First—Prussia cannot undertake an offensive war against France, without first being perfectly sure of the attitude of the Austrian-Hungarian Monarchy. Second—Prussia cannot sustain, except with great difficulty, a defensive war against France. Third—The Austrian-Hungarian Monarchy is sufficiently strong to make its neutrality respected, and secure to it a considerable augmentation of power. Of this account was not taken at Berlin in 1866, when it was determined to dissolve the German Confederation and break the alliance with Austria."

The position of Prussia is not so favorable as it appears at first view. Prussia weakened Austria, but created an Austrian-Hungary, whose power is always increasing. It was not the intention of Prussia to favor such a development, but, in fact, so it happened, and we have no cause to regret such a result. The power and greatness of Austria diminished in proportion as she misunderstood her mission. If for Prussia it is a necessity to ally herself to Russia, very well. For Austria and Hungary, it is a duty to act for the reconstruction of Poland.

Such is the pith of the pamphlet, which we give as food for thought and speculation. It shows at least what careful calculations are already made with reference to a struggle which sooner or later must come. The assumption that Austria is a Power representing liberal principles in contrast with West German despotism will hardly be accepted as founded on fact. All who pay attention to the matter know that Austria's liberal concessions are not spontaneous, but are the result of fear and the pressure of force. The nature of that Government, nourished on despotic traditions, cannot be changed in a day. It is curious to notice that this writer, like so many others, never speaks of the Austrian nation, which does not and cannot exist, but of the "Austrian Monarchy" and the "Austrian Power."

What the Administration has Done in Six Months.

The eloquent speech delivered last Saturday at Harrisburg by Hon. COLUMBUS DELANO, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, contains an able and striking summary of that part of the Administration's work which has come under his own official notice. It confirms by facts and figures the declaration so often made in our columns, that it would soon be found that the effective work of the present Administration would compare favorably with that of any of its predecessors. While the witlings have been letting slip their shafts at what they are pleased to censure as the Government's "idleness," retrenchment and economy have everywhere been going on apace, and none the less effectively because so quietly.

Take the single article of whisky. The total quantity on which revenue taxes were collected for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1868, (i. e., under President JOHNSON,) was only 6,709,546 gallons. The revenue then was at the rate of two dollars a gallon, and amounted, therefore, to between thirteen and fourteen millions of dollars. On the contrary, for the year ending June, 1869, the Bureau of Internal Revenue has had returns of annual taxes on no less than 69,009,331 gallons of whisky!

Again, compare the revenue receipts from January to June, inclusive, for 1868, with those of January to June, inclusive, in 1869. In the former period the tax on whisky was two dollars a gallon, in the latter only fifty cents; and yet, despite this enormous advantage in favor of the former period, its revenue receipts on the same objects of taxation were less by $21,500,000 than those of the same period in 1869! For example, we gain on the six months of 1869, compared with the last six months of 1868:

On spirits	$15,286,000
On tobacco	4,082,000
On fermented liquors	16,000
On gross receipts	41,000
On sales	165,000
On income	1,864,000
On banks	112,000

We lose on special taxes $205,000, on legacies $177,000, and on successions $111,000. We gain on passports $8,000, on tax upon gas $135,000, on stamps $850,000—nearly a million of dollars on the single article of the stamps on legal instruments; and we lose on the salaries of officers $242,000. This last loss Mr. DELANO happily explains by saying "we don't have so many officers, now, drawing salaries, and that is one of the things General GRANT intends to do—while he collects the tax he intends also to reduce the expenses of the Government."

Here, then, we have a gain of twenty-one and a half millions toward paying the national debt. If the two-dollar tax had been collected, says Mr. DELANO, as it should have been, on 75,000,000 gallons of whisky in 1868, that revenue alone would have yielded $150,000,000—instead of which the actual amount collected was less than $14,000,000.

Again, we are told that the internal revenue receipts during July, August and September of 1868, (under JOHNSON,) was in round numbers less than $89,000,000. The receipts of July, August and the first half of the current month of September, (under GRANT,) have been $43,800,000. And Mr. DELANO prophecies that the receipts of the entire three months of July, August and September 1869, will be $49,000,000, or ten millions in excess of the same three months of last year.

Ten millions gain in a single quarter, under the new Administration—these are figures of arithmetic which will outweigh with sensible people the figures of rhetoric in which General GRANT'S detractors are expert. It is not expected that an equal gain can be made in every quarter; but Commissioner DELANO declares, "I do believe that at the end of the next fiscal year the internal revenue will reach $175,000,000, and that without altering the present law, but simply by executing it." He believes, also, that the present Revenue laws will hereafter yield every year $180,000,000. He asserts that "the revenues of this Government may be increased over past receipts by the present year $25,000,000 per annum;" he declares his belief that the expenses of the Government will be decreased by a similar amount; and he concludes, therefore, that, as under the previous Administration we paid off $50,000,000 a year, now, under General GRANT, "we can pay $100,000,000 of our national debt."

This argument Mr. DELANO turns forcibly against repudiation. With eight years of similar gain, he says, "our national debt will not be more than $1,200,000,000." If it be slightingly answered that this remarkable speech was made in the course of a political canvass, it must be remembered that at least it was made by a man who is perfectly conversant with the official figures he uses, and who knows that a few days at furthest will disclose those figures to confirm his very welcome declarations.

General ALCORN, who is not unlikely to be nominated as Governor of Mississippi by the Republican Convention to be held to-morrow, has just given a long explanation of his views on some of the leading questions of the day. In the first place, he considers that the Democratic Party would, if they regained power, sweep away all the "results of peace, order and prosperity" that have attended the restoration of civil government in Mississippi and other States. The Democrats showed no quarter to the Whigs—why, then, should the Whigs covet relationship with them? The Democrats have yielded on the question of negro suffrage. "They have left nothing at issue in the reconstruction of the South save a question of men." Their policy would merely exclude Mississippi from Government aid in the construction of public works. General ALCORN then proceeds to define his views in the following manner: He is in favor of universal amnesty and universal suffrage. He believes that the bulk of the people of the State are loyal, and that reconstruction would soon be completed if they exercised a proper degree of moral courage. He admits—all this is in answer to a correspondent—that he publicly avowed that he was glad "when the Confederate flag went down." Yet, in saying so, he was not false to his own people. He served in the field "as a rebel," and one of his sons fell fighting, a victim to the Confederate cause. But after the battle of Gettysburg he foresaw the inevitable collapse of the rebellion. After that the war became "human carnage—carnage of his own kith and kin." "When I saw the manhood of my people being huddled by thousands into bloody graves, in the very wantonness of war, * * I avow openly that never did my heart go out in more earnest gratitude to the God of Mercy than when the Confederate flag went down." With regard to the Reconstruction acts, General ALCORN declares that he will stand by them "in all their parts." He protests against the special bitterness with which he is singled out for attack by the Democrats, and concludes thus: "Believe me, my friend, my aim is simply the restoration of the State to representation, with a guarantee of the rights of her people, without distinction of color. After that, I shall sit down to enjoy the fruits of my industry under civil government and political repose." The letter is altogether firm and manly in tone, and can scarcely tend to weaken General ALCORN'S position.

Governor Hoffman's Address to the Farmers.

At this season of the year nothing can be more appropriate than for public men to go and have a little homely talk in the agricultural districts. It tries the range of their own powers, and if they are gifted with the faculty of unbending, and can really fix their attention on the green fields without being drawn aside to the political stump, the farmers are well repaid for the trouble of going to hear them. Unluckily, it is very difficult to win success in these vacation speeches. Some men cannot travel an inch beyond the beaten track of their lives without exposing the scantiness of their resources. Their attempts to be light and cheerful only disturb every one who looks on at their unwieldy gambols. For a city-bred man and a politician to speak to a rural audience, and avoid all reference to urban or political subjects, is one of the hardest feats any one can well attempt. We see ten failures to one success. Governor HOFFMAN has been playing the part in Ulster County, and we think it must be allowed that he is the one successful man in ten. He said a great deal that must have amused and interested his audience, without touching upon ground which ought to be forbidden at every agricultural meeting. His Pastoral was conceived in the right spirit, and there are some points in it which may be pondered advantageously beyond the limits of Ulster County.

Governor HOFFMAN is not the first who has insisted on the importance to farmers of a good general education, but he repeats the lesson with originality and force. Farmers ought to be the most influential class in the country, but in order to exercise their proper power they must be fairly versed in knowledge, and by no means disposed to believe that reading books is a wicked waste of time. The latter theory was not uncommon once in farm-houses, but where is the man who could afford to be guided by it now? It is as necessary for farmers to make themselves acquainted with the progress of science, and the discoveries of the age, as it is for medical men. What should we think of the doctor who sat down in his father's study and declared that the books he found there were quite enough for him, and that he would have nothing to do with new-fangled systems? He would be practically unacquainted with some of the most important means of saving life ever discovered. The farmer who clung to the "old school" would be a loser in a similar degree. But if he chooses to injure himself, why inflict a wrong upon his children? Governor HOFFMAN reproaches the agricultural class with too often neglecting the schoolhouse altogether. His picture of its very appearance ought to fill farmers who live in the offending districts with remorse. "It is the meanest thing in the neighborhood, except the spirit which allows it to remain neglected."

One result of the neglect of the young is, that they are dazzled by the superficial glitter of City life, and long to turn their backs upon the simple labors of the fields. It is too true a story which the Governor told his friends in Ulster. The young agriculturist thinks to leave "plodding" behind him, and make a grand career for himself amid the whirl of City life. He has heard of successes—the failures never come to his knowledge. WILLIAM COBBETT, who used to deal very plainly with the farmers, as he did with most other people, long ago rebuked this tendency. "The children are all too clever for work," he exclaims, "they are all to be gentlefolks. Go to plow! Good G——! What, 'young gentlemen' go to plow! They become clerks, or some skimmy-dish thing or other." The Governor of the State is not so boisterous in his language as old COBBETT, but he takes very much the same line. Above all, he earnestly exhorts young farmers and laborers not to give up their honest and manly occupations for the chance of getting an office. Upon this subject the Governor ought to have been heard with attention, for he speaks with no little authority. When he further told his audience not to envy the smartly-dressed clerk or his rich employer, for an immense weight of care often hung over such men, the scenes in this City on Friday and Saturday may suffice to point the moral of his tale.

American farmers need less than farmers of any other nation the caution not to oppose the introduction of machinery; thanks to them, chiefly, the crazy objection to improved appliances of the kind have been demolished, even in England. Governor HOFFMAN told his friends in Ulster, that, during the past year, 2,000 applications for new patents have been filed in the Department at Washington, and that of these more than 1,500 were for agricultural implements. In dwelling upon this progress, the speaker's heart was kindled, and he drew a picture of a "model American farmer," which might be put into some regularly defined metre, and made the happy conclusion of the next new eclogue. We are afraid to repeat all the qualifications which Governor HOFFMAN looks for in the farmer of the future. Some people will say that the future is so distant that it becomes identical with the millenium. But even now, happily, there are men of whom the fancy sketch is an accurate portrait. That their influence may extend, and that many more may grow up like them is evidently the wish which the Governor of the State has at heart, and the shrewd and sensible advice contained in his speech would do more than anything else to render his desire a reality.

Not Annexation but Independence.

The Providence Journal says very truly:

"The way for us to obtain Cuba is to wait. This is the quickest way as well as the best, the most certain, the most honorable, the cheapest. A war with the feeblest Power on earth, a war with the Sandwich Islands, would cost us more than the price at which Cuba could be honestly bought."

Nothing can be truer than this. But do we want Cuba? Is it clear that Cuba as a State of this Union would be worth any more to us than Cuba independent? Is it clear that the annexation of a tropical island, with a population of totally different races, speaking a foreign tongue, unaccustomed to the exercise of any sort of political power or responsibilities, and cultivating the religion of a very small minority of our people, is likely to be advantageous at present to us or to them? Is it even probable that if the Cubans secure their independence they will care to surrender it and their newly-begotten privileges at once to a foreign State? Did any people ever surrender their nationality in that way voluntarily to another of a different religion, race, tongue, and political and social usages? We doubt if history furnishes a single precedent for such a national abdication. We fancy it is a little premature to assume that Cuba will ever belong to the United States until she is reduced to the alternative of belonging to us or to Spain. When that point is touched there can be no doubt what her choice will be. Till then the question of the day for Cuba is independence not annexation.

If Cuba were likely to desire annexation to the United States, Mexico should have desired it still more. She did desire it pending the struggle with France for her national existence. But nothing of the kind has been lisped in Mexico since the French army sailed from Vera Cruz.

We want Cuba independent; we want the wealth of Cuba relieved from the oppressive exactions of Spain; we want the Cuban market opened to our trade upon liberal terms. It is by no means certain that we want anything more of Cuba or of Spain, at least until the relations already subsisting between the white and colored races in the United States are a little better defined and understood than they are at present.

In discussing, therefore, our relations with Cuba, the question is, What we are to do or not do to promote her emancipation? The question of annexation is not pending.

An Historical Parallel.

On Sunday last, the 19th, was read in the Romanist churches of this City a circular letter, apostolic, "under the ring of the fisherman," reciting the decree for the Council to be held on the day "consecrated to the immaculate conception of the Blessed Virgin, Mother of God," the Pope's supplication that "All the faithful uniting their prayers, he may establish in this Council all that can contribute to the salvation of Christians, and the greater glory, happiness and peace of the Catholic Church, and as prayers are more agreeable to God when they ascend from a soul purified from all stain, he opens with Apostolic liberality the celestial treasury of indulgences plenary and remission of all sins to all the faithful of both sexes who shall, between the 1st of June and the close of the Council, visit certain churches, (in New-York the Cathedral in Mulberry-street, St. Anne's in Eighth and the Nativity in Second-avenue,) or at least one of them twice, who, in addition to the accustomed fast of the Ember Days, shall fast for three days even not consecutively, and confess their sins and receive the Eucharist. This indulgence is applicable to the soul in Purgatory."

Now without reference to the ecclesiastical question between the Churches, the plain student of history cannot but recall another so-called Ecumenical Council, the last summoned by a Pope, in which this very question of indulgences caused the splitting asunder of the European Christian Church.

Then as now a priest stood forth to resist the whole weight of the Roman autocracy. LUTHER in his apostacy was backed by many of the Princes of his age and country. In our time the recalcitrant priest has behind him a powerful Press and the spirit of modern civilization.

We will not presume to anticipate the future, but we have a right to expect that the Church, as well as society, will profit by the discussions to which this Council is destined to give rise.

The ruinous passion for speculation has been as prevalent in Austria of late as it is in this country. In discussing it the Schlesische Zeitung uses language which is peculiarly adapted to this locality at the present time. It observes: "In Austria we have seen this mania for speculation rampant, and the consequences are now beginning to appear. An edifice which had no other foundation than the insatiable greediness of speculators could not permanently stand. Should circumstances, however, render it possible to stave off for a time by artificial resources the inevitable period of the great collapse, it can only be done by adding new delinquencies to the catalogue. The consequences of wild and unscrupulous speculation are to be found in the withdrawal of capital from trade and industry, in the demoralization produced by a passion for amassing wealth without labor, and finally in the ruin which must necessarily fall on many of the speculators and their families."

Dr. C. F. HALL, one of the most successful of Arctic explorers, has returned home with a store of information concerning the fate of FRANKLIN'S party. He brings with him "the remains" of a young man who was one of the unfortunate explorers, and some articles which belonged to Sir JOHN FRANKLIN himself. Not satisfied with his present discoveries, Dr. HALL talks of going to the Arctic regions again. It is said of the burning climes of the far East, where the Anglo-Saxon is unable to colonize, that there is a fatal fascination around all remembrance of them which draws men back within their circle, even although they may have fled again and again in broken health. Does a similar spell hang over the regions of eternal ice and snow? These Arctic explorers seem to know no rest. FRANKLIN himself was in his 60th year when he started on his last expedition, and if two or three voyages would have contented him, he would have remained at home in the enjoyment of his fame. First, the object was to find the Northwest passage—now it is to discover traces of the Franklin expedition. It must always seem an ungracious thing to discourage daring and enterprise such as Dr. HALL has shown. We will therefore simply express the hope that while the Arctic charm is exerting its sway over him he will avoid the misfortunes which have given too many Polar expeditions a sad memory in history. Franklin relics are interesting in a mild degree, but are they worth risking more lives to recover?

A Caution to Amateur Diplomatists.

Quite a number of patriots have lately shown a disposition to relieve the Secretary of State from all trouble in settling any little differences we may have with foreign States, by acting as volunteer diplomatists' Once or twice they have arranged the Alabama claims, and it is not their fault if our negotiations with Spain are not prosperous. They undertake to know, in the first place, what our Government can or will do, and then they take it upon themselves to ascertain what the other parties can or will do, and with the information thus acquired, and the aid of the Press, they contrive to confuse and mislead the public, in some instances to a serious extent.

For the information of such volunteer diplomatists, and for their protection from the possible consequences of their meddlesomeness, we invite their attention to a law which, though now somewhat old, possesses all the vigor of the very last act of our Congress. We should be sorry to have any of the gentlemen who are disposed to do for their country what they think no one else can do so well, rewarded by an ungrateful republic with a five thousand dollar fine and three years' imprisonment at Sing Sing. Yet such might be their fate if they were left in ignorance of this statute:

AN ACT FOR THE PUNISHMENT OF CERTAIN CRIMES THEREIN SPECIFIED.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That if any person, being a citizen of the United States, whether he be actually resident, or abiding within the United States, or in any foreign country, shall, without the permission or authority of the Government of the United States, directly or indirectly, commence, or carry on, any verbal or written correspondence or intercourse with any foreign Government, or any officer or agent thereof, with an intent to influence the measures or conduct of any foreign Government, or of any officer or agent thereof, in relation to any disputes or controversies with the United States, or defeat the measures of the Government of the United States; or if any person being a citizen of, or resident within the United States, and not duly authorized, shall counsel, advise, aid or assist in any such correspondence, with intent, as aforesaid, he or they shall be deemed guilty of a high misdemeanor, and on conviction before any Court of the United States having jurisdiction thereof, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $5,000 and by imprisonment during a term not less than six months nor exceeding three years. Provided always, that nothing in this act contained shall be considered to abridge the right of individual citizens of the United States to apply, by themselves, or their lawful agents, to any foreign Government, or the agents thereof, for the redress of any injuries in relation to person or property which such individuals may have sustained from such Government, or any of its agents, citizens or subjects.

Approved Jan. 30, 1799.

Is woman so very much oppressed by our present social system, after all? A correspondent of an evening contemporary undertakes to show that when she marries she has decidedly the best of the bargain. She possesses the absolute control over her own property, while the husband is not endowed with the same privileges in respect to his property—"what is his, is hers; and what is hers, is her own." She may be rich in her own right, and the husband poor, and yet he is responsible for her debts. Her creditors can seize his property, and leave hers untouched. He must support her, but she need not "contribute a dollar toward the expenses of the household." If she owns the house in which they are living she may turn him out of it. He cannot act in that way toward her. If the husband changes his residence, he cannot compel the wife to accompany him. "She may absent herself, by day and even by night, for as long as it may suit her will, and unless he can convict her of outright infidelity he has no redress." Lastly, the facilities for obtaining divorce are much greater for women than for men. If, then, a woman would be lord and master, the plan is easy—let her marry. Even without the law to aid her, this is perhaps the shortest way of relieving the supremacy said to be hers of right.

If we read Governor HOFFMAN'S speech aright, his view of the way to pay one's debts is not of precisely the same pattern as Mr. PENDLETON'S at the Kingston fair the other day:

"I have read many learned essays on the question of 'How to Pay the National Debt.' When men ask me what financial theory I have, I answer, 'Only one, and it is this: A union of people and of States; a hearty joining together of all sections in the common work of reëstablishment and restoration; industry, prudence, retrenchment and economy. Increase your earnings; diminish your expenditures. Save when you can, and spend only when you must, and let the whole world see that you mean to pay your debts."

Would not it be polite for HOFFMAN to offer to stump Ohio for PENDLETON?

Return of Dr. Hayes.

Yesterday the return of Dr. HALL to New-Bedford, Mass., was announced. To-day a telegram from St. Johns, N. F., notes the arrival of the Panther from the North, having on board the expedition of Dr. HAYES. It is rather a remarkable coincidence that these two noted Arctic explorers should return home so nearly together, and if acting without previous concert, the coincidence is still more striking.

Dr. HAYES sailed from St. John on the 3d of July in the steamship Panther, a vessel which was hired by Mr. WM. BRADFORD, an American artist, for the purpose of conveying himself and friends on a scientific expedition to the Arctic regions. From letters received from Dr. HAYES under date of July 26, written at Ivigtue, South Greenland, we learned that the party were all well, and that the objects of the expedition were being successfully accomplished.

The photographers, who formed a portion of the party, had been most fortunate in obtaining views of icebergs and other scenes on those frozen coasts, and the pastures which they would bring home with them would be of the most interesting character. In his letter Dr. HAYES expressed the hope of "bringing his next budget of news in person," and his many friends will now welcome his return with pleasure.

CUBAN MATTERS.

ARRIVAL OF THE STEAMSHIP BIENVILLE.

By the arrival at this port of the steamship Bienville, which left Havana Sept. 21, we are in receipt of late news from Cuba. Purser A. T. ALEXANDER, of the Bienville, will accept our thanks for the prompt delivery of our correspondence and papers.

Outside Pressure—Moral Effect on the Government Circles—Startling Defections—Volunteer Patriotism Increasing—Movements of Cavada—Truth in its Proper Place—The Matanzas Poisoning Affair—The Weather.

From our Own Correspondent.

HAVANA, Tuesday, Sept. 21, 1869.

The interest displayed by the present Captain-General of Cuba in the homilies dealt out as political pabulum by the no longer immaculate Diario, and his authority to the Vos de Cuba to undertake the task of reprimanding the delinquent organ of the old slavocracy, have excited general comment. Those who looked to the "Official Journal of the Post" for semi-authorized declarations upon questions of governmental policy, see with surprise that the Diario has been given the cold shoulder, and that the affections and apparent confidences of the Government have been transferred to the Vos de Cuba. There is no longer any doubt but that the article published in the columns of the latter journal condemnatory of the course pursued by the Diario was written from notes and opinions furnished by DE RODAS, and as this fact has become patent to all observers here, everyone naturally looks to the columns of the Vos for the opinions of the Captain-General. Anxious to find out the latest expression of opinion on the part of the Government, I looked for information to the confidential journal of DE RODAS, and found that considerable alarm was prevalent among the select circles of the palace, on account of the persistency with which influential journalists and statesmen every where gave utterance to the opinion that Spain and Cuba's joint partnership ought to be dissolved as speedily as possible, and, furthermore, that such dissolution would prove the most beneficial under the circumstances, to each of the contending parties, to say nothing of the interests of humanity and civilization.

The Vos, in its issue of yesterday, contained an article entitled "The Cuban Question," expressing its surprise and apparent alarm at the fact that the feeling in favor of the cession of Cuba to the United States has even penetrated among the loyal adherents of the "National Integrity" in Spain. In order that your readers may estimate justly what importance is attached by the organ of DE RODAS to that powerful moral outside pressure, I have translated for their benefit the following extracts:

"It is not alone the periodicals of the United States who advocate the cession by Spain to that Republic of one of her dearest provinces; neither are the Times, of London, La France and La Patrie, of Paris, the only ones who labor for the same result; and lastly, the Republican journals of Madrid, accustomed to look with aversion on everything opposed to the realization of their exaggerated theories, are not alone those who demand that our country possess valor enough to perform of itself the amputation of one of its most essential and important limbs.

Journals excessively Spanish, and at the same time very conservative; publications enjoying great reputation and which exercise a powerful influence in public opinion, such as the Debate, and we might also say of entire provinces, who possess immense interests in the Island of Cuba, also advise Spain to sell or cede this province.

Of these periodicals, that which has excited most attention, for having thus expressed itself, and which has caused us the most painful surprise by its attitude, is the Diario de Barcelona, which, for its influence, its lengthy existence and the moderation and good practical common sense which distinguishes it, is read with interest in all of the Catalonian provinces, in many of the others in Spain and also abroad, where, we are aware, it is highly appreciated. This journal, against which, most certainly, no crimes of venality can be charged, publishes in one of its latest numbers an article from its editor, JOSE MANE, of Flaquer, entitled 'La Cuestion de Cuba,' and in which—after having examined and repudiated several proposed solutions of the problem ventilated today—he writes these words, which we reproduce here with real pain: 'According to our judgment there remains to us no other course than to open negotiations with the United States in order to cede to them our Antilles.'

We do not to-day possess either sufficient time or calmness to reply," &c., &c., &c.

VOLUNTEER PATRIOTISM INCREASING.

The news received here recently that Spain was going to make a grand naval demonstration in American waters has raised the valor of the various volunteer organizations almost to a fighting standard. Matanzas, however, seems destined to bear off the palm in the promptitude of its patriotic efforts. The Governor of the jurisdiction reviewed a column of the Moriseados, ready to leave for the seat of war at a moment's notice, and addressed them in very complimentary strains. This address differs considerably in its tenor from the secret order promulgated among the officers a few days ago, and flatters the volunteers amazingly. It would be extremely difficult to fathom which of the orders, the secret or the avowed, contain the Governor's real sentiments. Even in the Cuban Ring it sometimes becomes necessary to straddle two horses at once.

CAVADA'S MOVEMENTS.

The Diario of this morning claims to have received news from Santa Clara, in the District of the Villas, stating, on good authority, that the revolutionary leaders, CAVADA, VILLEGAS, EL POLACO, (come to life again after being killed several times by the Voz de Cuba,) and LORDA, had gone to Camaguey to join QUESADA and petition him for reinforcements, as without these latter auxiliaries it was impossible to hold the Villas.

As this proceeds from the Diario, it need not be taken altogether as gospel, although appearances seem to indicate that the revolution is not very active in the Cinco Villas.

The town of San Diego de Niguas, which was destroyed by the rebels some time ago, is to be rebuilt by the Spaniards, and preparations are being made to carry into execution the project.

"TRUTH IN ITS PROPER PLACE!"

Under this heading, the Aurora del Primuri has published a contradiction of the statement made some time ago with regard to the attempted poisoning of the bread intended for the use of the troops in Matanzas, from which it appears that the charge was a trumped up one, having no other foundation than the unreliable one of a negro of very questionable character and antecedents. The principal witness in the case was this same negro, and in such a grave affair ought to have been kept in security by the authorities; such, however, has not been the case, and the bird has flown. The missing gentleman was to have been granted his freedom, by means of the pecuniary efforts of the Volunteers. He has, however, saved them all trouble and expense by absquatulating to unknown regions. The young Cuban who was arrested and charged with the crime of poisoning the bread, although exonerated from this charge, is held on that of "infidencia," (treason)—probably in accordance with the Spain-justice-morality programme of the "Knight of Rhodes," whom the Diario congratulates on having received the Grand Cross of the American Order of Isabella, the Catholic, in recompense for his distinguished services.

THE WEATHER.

The first norther of the season is blowing this morning, of course cooling the air somewhat, which is not disagreeable to a body after having endured six months of heat not interrupted by even a cool night, with the thermometer ranging from 85° to 90° in the shade.

Tricks upon Travelers.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

For the benefit of travelers I wish to expose a swindling operation carried on by the New-York Central Railroad, especially on the two roads between Rochester and Suspension Bridge. Passengers going West from Boston or Albany are not notified of a change of cars at Rochester. On arriving here the conductor sings out, "Cars stop for refreshments twenty minutes." That is all, and of course passengers who do not want refreshments remain in the cars. They go on, and find themselves in Buffalo instead of Suspension Bridge, twenty-four miles away! Without a word from the conductor, and he has got your ticket! He now informs you that you must pay 85 cents for a ticket to Suspension Bridge, (over their own road, too,) after you have already paid your fare there!

In this way I know of five passengers from Boston 3 P. M. train going West of Suspension Bridge, (two of them going to California,) who were left two hours at Buffalo and four hours at Suspension Bridge before they could get on.

There being four trains per day, if five passengers per train are swindled, it will make the snug little sum of $25 per day, or $9,000 per year, to say nothing of the time lost or how important your business.

This has been going on so for eight years. For this information I refer you to the ticket master at the Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Lewiston Railroad depot, at Buffalo. He plainly told me "It was 'nothing new;' it happened every day, and there was no help for it!" Now, I want to know if there cannot be some improvement in this matter? Will not the consolidated railroad men like VANDERBILT, FISK, Jr., &c., look to it, and oblige the traveling public?

Respectfully yours, N. F. MORRILL.

JACKSON, Mich., Friday, Sept. 24, 1869.

COMMENTS.

The inconvenience spoken of by our correspondent is of common occurrence on most American railways. There is great difficulty in obtaining information from railway officials when and where it is most needed. A part of this inconvenience results from the want of any badge or uniform by which the officer of the Company may be recognized. Every person employed on a railway, whose duties require him to hold intercourse with the passengers, should wear a uniform. It should also be some one's duty to be always accessible at every station where many roads centre to answer such questions as may be addressed to him. There is room for vast improvements in this regard on all our public thoroughfares.

AMUSEMENTS.

Dramatic.

"PROGRESS" AT WALLACK'S.

Mr. ROBERTSON'S newest piece is also one of his best. The dialogue is smart and sententious, the characters are cleverly contrasted, the situations are possible and effective and the general result is altogether refreshing and unconventional. As a masterly and therefore easy picture of very modern English life it is perhaps not surpassed by any comedy of the last ten years. Its title indicates its chief significance and purpose, which is to afford a vivid contrast between the going and the coming generation, between the past and the present, the antique and the modern, between "our glorious age of progress" and the "good old times" that have gone by. Such being the principal aim, it is admirably subserved by the introduction of well-conceived and adroitly-drawn characters who are representatives of the opposite systems, who keep up a running fire upon each other's respective prejudices, a sort of battle dore and shuttlecock of epigram and repartee. The plot is a trifle melodramatic, as with some other of ROBERTSON'S pieces, which are constructed with an obvious intent not to forget the prevailing penchant for sensation, even while catering for the most intellectual taste of the day. Dialogue is, however, unquestionably Mr. ROBERTSON'S strong point. Here he is, like Saul, a head and shoulders above all his rivals. None can approach the neatness and sparkle of his happiest vein, its quick thrusts of satire and as ready parries, its well-trained satire and its clean, sharp-out brevity; and if this sometimes reminds us of fireworks, that blaze and glitter for a time to end in smoke, what matter? They amuse while they last, and teach a lesson as well as afford a pleasure that duller things can never do. And here the difference between ROBERTSON'S handiwork and the slower and more cumbrous manner of the comedy of the last generation is pronounced and intelligible. The Saturday Review of our day may possibly be less solid or sometimes less respectable than the old Literary Gazette or Examiner; but none can deny that it is vastly more entertaining.

We have spoken of the plot, but we do not mean to tell it. Perhaps the plot of a play, like that of a novel, is often better left untold—especially when there is not a great deal to tell. It may be said, however, that, interwoven with the clever talk which is the most and the best of "Progress," there is a very nice love story, and that the characters allow scope for some very good acting. Miss LOUISA MOORE made her first appearance, and an excellent impression as Eve the heroine, and of course the inspirer of the tender emotions, and Mr. J. W. WALLACK was her robust and efficient lover. He, John Ferne, is a civil engineer and the living embodiment of "progress." The Hon. Arthur Mompesson, Mr. CHARLES FISHER, is the antithetical type of conservatism if not of reaction. The latter has, as allies, a good old-fashioned English physician, Dr. Brown, played con amore by Mr. JOHN GILBERT, Mr. Bunnythorne, a sort of friend of the family's, also very well acted by Mr. J. H. STODDART, and Miss Myrtle, Mrs. J. SEFTON, a quaint and well-studied spinster, perpetually armed with green spectacles and a lap-dog. The other characters are slight but well in keeping, and the general effect is decidedly happy. The scenery and costumes are careful and appropriate, and barring the frequent intrusion of music which, in such a play, does not strike us as in the best taste, nothing mars the harmony of the picture. Miss LOUISA MOORE acted with much grace and delicacy, carefully avoided exaggeration, looked remarkably pretty, and was called out at the end of the second and third acts to receive the floral and other congratulations of the audience. "Progress" may be fairly written down as a legitimate and thorough success. As the artists warm in their parts the well-wrought dash and variety of the scenes will become in their hands more and more effective. The piece deserves a prosperous run and to become an established favorite, and that both these things will be accomplished we see no room to doubt.

BOUCICAULT AT THE FIFTH-AVENUE.

An excellent and amusing comedy, "Old Heads and Young Hearts," was performed last evening at the Fifth-avenue Theatre in a very satisfactory manner. Although its term of occupancy of the boards was intended to be brief, the play was scenically illustrated with an appropriateness, an attention to detail and a brilliancy which have never been surpassed. And it was very well acted, not, perhaps, with the general excellence which distinguished its representations some years ago, but with an effect than which none pleasanter could be looked for now at any local house. Mrs. JENNINGS as Lady Alice and Mr. G. H. CLARKE as Littleton Coke bore off the honors of the evening, their acting in the love scene in the third act being especially good. The list of players of the day contains the name of no artiste but would be at a disadvantage in the character of Jesse Rural, with the recollection of BLAKE in the part present to all. Mr. DAVIDGE last night did nothing to efface that recollection, and failed to move in the pathetic passages of the piece, though too proficient a performer to give an unacceptable rendering of the rôle. A most comical picture of Bob afterward mated by a sketch of Oravel, the lawyer, was offered by Mr. JAMES LEWIS. Mr. D. H. HARKINS was a passable Tom Coke, and Miss MARIE LONGMORE, who like Mr. HARKINS, made her first appearance this season, displayed much vivacity as the boydenish Miss Rocket. The other artists were Messrs. H. RYNER, EGBERT, J. M. COOKE and Mrs. S. H. GILBERT, and concerning them, we need only say that their efforts added to the agreeable impression of the performance. The comedy will be repeated to-night and Friday, while "London Assurance" will be first given Wednesday, and then Thursday and Saturday.

CARLOTTA PATTI CONCERTS.

The second of the series of Carlotta Patti concerts was given at Steinway Hall last evening, in presence of an audience more numerous and brilliant than attended the first. To-night Mlle. CARLOTTA PATTI sings, and MM. RITTER and PRUME play, at the Academy of Music in Brooklyn. They reappear in this City on Wednesday and Thursday evenings.

Alleged Defalcation in a Providence Bank.

From the Providence Journal, Sept. 27.

Our citizens have been somewhat agitated for two or three days by reports of a defalcation in the National Exchange Bank, which reports increased currency upon the announcement, Saturday, of the resignation of the Cashier, WM. H. COREY. We are sorry to learn that the report is true, and that upon a thorough and careful examination, the accounts of the late Cashier are found to be nearly twenty-five thousand dollars short. This, we are told, was the condition of affairs Saturday evening, and it was hoped that the bottom line had been reached, but it was possible that other checks might come in to swell the total of the deficiency. Mr. COREY, it is understood, was arrested on a criminal process issued by the United States authorities, Saturday evening, and held to bail in $20,000. Profuse, and perhaps prodigate personal expenditures are alleged to have been the cause of the defalcation. The National Exchange Bank is one of the oldest and strongest institutions in the city, and we presume its surplus covers all possible deficiency. Bank Examiner MYGETT, who seems born for the place he fills with such admirable efficiency, rendered invaluable assistance in ferreting out this wrong-doing, and had it not been for his vigilance, the delinquent might have continued to abuse the confidence of the Board until a more serious waste of the funds had rendered a crisis inevitable. This, we believe, is the first case of this character that has occurred among the national banks of Rhode Island. The result will be, we trust, to stir up boards of directors to such increased vigilance of supervision that similar occurrences in the future will be almost impossible.

General N. B. FORREST has written a sharp letter, denouncing a fire-eating Southern editor who spoke of his associating with persons with whom he does not agree politically as disgraceful and disgusting. He says he is engaged in building a railroad which will be of vast advantage to Alabama, Mississippi and Tennessee, and that in his opinion the accomplishment of this enterprise is an object worthy the ambition of any man, and to one who loves his country and humbly seeks to serve the interests of his fellow-citizens, is far above the considerations of mere partisan politics. He adds that his object has been to bring peace to the country and prosperity to the people; to soften down the prejudices of men of both parties, and in the development of the great material interests of the country, to smooth the asperities engendered by the war, and efface alike the marks and the memories of strife.

Speaking of his qualifications, it says that Mr. GREELEY is already a freeholder in Virginia, deeply interested in its well-being, and that he has only to hang up his hat among them for one night to meet all the requirements of the Constitution.

On the contrary, he said he was aware several gentlemen were named for this position in whom he had perfect confidence, including General WICKHAM and Dr. SHARP.

The associated banks of Boston have informed their non-resident stockholders that, by a recent decision of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, they must pay the State tax upon their shares. There are two taxes now assessed, for the years 1868 and 1869.

The St. Crispins in Massachusetts, who have 110 lodges, with a membership of over 30,000, have made arrangements to purchase coal in Philadelphia and flour in the West, and to transport them to that State for their use. They expect to obtain these articles by this means at a very cheap rate.

The Arrival of a Part of Dr. Hall's Expedition.

From the Norwich (Conn.) Bulletin, Sept. 27.

The schooner Cornelia, Capt. BAKER, R. A. MORGAN agent, arrived at New-London Saturday evening, from Hudson's Bay, Aug. 28, with 150 barrels oil. The bark Ansel Gibbs, of Fairhaven, with 600 barrels oil, sailed at the same time. The Cornelia has been absent about sixteen months, and has seen but few whales. She brings as passengers three men belonging to Dr. C. F. HALL'S expedition in search of the remains of Sir JOHN FRANKLIN and his crew. Dr. HALL himself is on board the bark Ansel Gibbs. He has with him his Innuit guides, HANNAH and JOE, some spoons and a chronometer box belonging to Sir JOHN FRANKLIN, and other relics of the lost expedition. He found the skeletons of his crew, the remains of his boats and other relics, at King William's Land. He also found an old native Innuit who claims to know all about the fate of Sir JOHN FRANKLIN and his party. He says the ships, the Brebus and Terror, were stoven and the crews took to their boats and got on shore. When their provisions were exhausted, one boat's crew, who were armed, killed the others and lived upon their flesh, and finally they all perished of starvation. The schooner Cornelia brought home an anchor found at the extreme north, marked C. S., 1766, supposed to have belonged to the first explorers. The ice and snow prevented Dr. HALL from prosecuting the search, but it is his intention to return next Summer and continue it. He has wintered four years in the extreme north, and has made many valuable contributions to the world's knowledge of that almost terra incognita.

THE MUNICIPAL RING.

Tammany and the State Convention—The Sachems Return Humiliated to the Wigwam—Intestine Trouble—Difficulty of Fixing up the "Slate"—Candidates for the Legislature.

Tammany has been to the State Convention and returned again crest-fallen and humiliated. Neither her bejeweled sachems nor her "big Injuns" were able to command the respect of the Convention, nor could her long retinue of painted warriors with their grim visages and barbaric "whoops" strike terror to the hearts of the country Democracy. Both alike were treated with distant reserve or open contempt, and, gathering themselves together in a corner of Wieting Hall, they played the part of silent spectators of the Convention's proceedings, and distributed their votes among the rival candidates with a cautious impartiality that betrayed their nervous anxiety to conciliate all and offend none. The high hopes which she but recently entertained of taking possession of the Democracy of the Empire State and extending the machinery of the "Ring" over the entire Commonwealth, were rudely blasted at Syracuse, and Tammany comes back to the wigwam with the sorrowful conviction that her operations, for the present, at least, must continue to be restricted to her old stamping ground, on Manhattan Island. And, as if to add to her misfortunes, she finds herself, even here in her own bailiwick, beset with new complications, difficulties and dangers. Intestine feuds are rife among her once obedient followers, and signs of rebellion portend from all quarters of the Democratic camp. The Democratic Union organization grows stronger and stronger with every return of the moon, and threatens to consolidate most of the brains and character of the party in one combined assault upon the wigwam and its en tire ring of rotten conspirators. The German Democracy, too, are in the field against old Tammany, and are organizing "independent" clubs with such rapidity and success as to overwhelm the "Ring" with dismay. The table of office-holders, with their salaries, published by the TIMES, has opened their eyes to the niggardly treatment which they receive from that close corporation of Celtic thieves and plunderers, and their recent demands for additional pap and a new deal are treated by the "Ring" with quiet disdain. Moreover the action of the State Convention with reference to the Excise law has convinced them that the Democratic pretence of superior sympathy for lager-beer, through which they have been accustomed to wheedle the Teutonic vote into support of their ticket, is the sheerest gammon. The Convention paid no heed to the demand of the German Central Committee that it should take decided stand against the odious Excise law, but dismissed that vital question with the feeble resolve that "if the law is to continue in force it should be made uniform throughout the State." This the Germans regard, and justly, as a semi-indorsement of the expediency of the law and a hypocritical device to secure the votes of temperance fanatics.

Thus the Germans are beginning to discover, what Republicans have all along told them, that the Democratic Party has been courting their vote under false pretences, and only for the purpose of perpetuating itself in power and in the possession of place and plunder. As soon as the Teuton begins to demand his share of the spoils the Democratic Party forgets its love for lager, turns its back on Hans, and seeks an alliance elsewhere.

In view of these new difficulties, and others that might be named, the Ring find it very difficult to prepare a "slate" for the coming campaign in this City that shall offer a reasonable assurance of success. They find such an extraordinary scramble for office this year even among their own supporters as to render it exceedingly difficult to make selections that will harmonize the rival candidates and prevent a bolt. The following list contains the names of candidates for Senators and Assemblymen so far as they have been agreed upon up to this time:

In the Fourth Senatorial District, Grand Sachem WM. M. TWEED has been booked, or rather has booked himself for reëlection without controversy.

In the Fifth District, MIKE NORTON, the present Senator, wants a reëlection, if he can't get a Police Justiceship, but in his vacillation between the two he is likely to lose both. He is doubtless better fitted for the former than the latter, but he has rivals for both places who claim he is not fit for either. GEORGE H. PURSER is contesting his seat for Senator and will get the delegations from the Fifteenth and Sixteenth Wards, leaving NORTON only the Ninth. The "Ring" will probably step in and settle the quarrel in due time, but the chances now are that NORTON will not return to Albany. There ought to be a Republican elected from this district, and, now that the party is united, if the right kind of a man is put up, there is no reason there should not be. Hon. THOMAS E. STEWART has been urged to take the Republican nomination, and if he were to do so would doubtless be elected.

In the Sixth District there is also a quarrel in the Tammany camp between T. J. CREAMER, the present incumbent, and CHAS. G. CORNELL. Both are waiting for PETER B. SWEENEY to issue his edict, settling the contest, and both will abide by his decision. Both candidates are men of about equal ability and experience, and it won't make much difference to anybody, except themselves, which gets it.

In the Seventh District it is settled that JNO. J. BRADLEY is to be renominated.

In the Ninth District there is a fierce contest between HENRY GENET, the present Senator, and WM. HITCHMAN, Ex-Speaker of the Assembly. A large portion of Germans support HITCHMAN'S claims, but GENET is an experienced wire-puller, and will most likely get the nomination.

For members of the Assembly it has been pretty definitely settled that last year's members shall be renominated in the following districts: Second, Dennis Burns; Third, Owen Cavanagh; Fifth, Peter Mitchell; Sixth, Timothy J. Campbell; Tenth, Anthony L. Hartman, (in case he can't get the nomination for Coroner;) Eleventh, Peter Trainor; Thirteeth, Michael Halpin; Fifteenth, Alex. Frear; Eighteenth, Lawrence D. Kiernan.

In the First District JOHN BERRIGAN will probably succeed Colonel MURPHY, who is after a Civil Justiceship. In the Fourth JOHN BLAIR is booked to succeed JOHN GALVIN; in the Eighth WILLIAM C. GOVER will try to run as the Ring candidate against MARTIN NACHTMAN, a German, who beat Tammany last year and can do it again. In the Ninth JOHN HOUGHTALIN is to take the place of WM. C. BERGEN. In the Twelfth HENRY WOLTMAN, the only German elected by Tammany last year, retires on a promise of being made Alderman of that ward. His successor has not been definitely agreed upon, but will probably be WM. W. COOK. In the Fourteenth, C. H. WHALEN, who was ousted from his seat last Winter by another Democrat, will try to get the renomination, but he has a rival in JOHN CAUMP, BERNARD RILEY and half a dozen others. In the Sixteenth, JAMES IRVING, who has represented the District for three years, retires in order to run for Police Justice in place of KELLY. The aspirants for the succession are CHAS. LAMB and JAMES MCBRIDE, subject to the decision of the Ring. In the Seventeenth, GEO. W. PLUNKITT is to be succeeded by FRED. H. FLAGGE. In the Nineteenth, JOSIAH PORTER, last year's member, is to be Civil Justice for the new Ninth Judicial District, and will be succeeded in the Assembly by THOS. C. FIELDS, Corporation Attorney. In the Twentieth, JOHN KEEGAN, according to the present slate, will have to give place to JOHN KENNEDY—only a slight change of name, but a change not by any means agreeable to KEEGAN, who is an irrepressible Irishman, and may take a notion to run on his own hook. If he does, it will be nip and tuck between KEEGAN and KENNEDY. In the Twenty-first, now represented by WM. HITCHMAN, there are several aspirants for Legislative honors, but unless HITCHMAN beats GENET for the Senatorial nomination he will probably claim his own and go back to the Assembly himself.

The Seventh District, now represented by JAS. A. RICHMOND, a Republican, will probably return a Republican again this year. Indeed, under the present union of the party, the Republicans ought to carry at least three districts. Tammany has nominated as candidate for this district J. WALKER FOWLER, who ought to be, and doubtless will be, beaten out of his boots.

Among the candidates for the Judiciary, there has been no definite change since our reporter reviewed the field, except that the Ring have decided to put FRED. E. LOEW, present Justice of the Fourth District Court, in the field as candidate for the Court of Common Pleas, in place of Judge BARRETT. The candidate for the third place in the Superior Court, vice Judge FITHIAN, is not yet selected. P. J. JOACHIMSEN is pushed by the Germans, but don't stand much chance with the Ring. WILLIAM E. CURTIS, Ex-President of the Board of Education, is the best candidate thus far named by the Democracy, and would be most acceptable to the Bar, but he might not be as acceptable to the Ring, and "there's the rub." For Justice of the Supreme Court in place of Judge CLERKE, JOSEPH J. MARKIN is looming into favor, and in case CLERKE is thrown aside, would make an acceptable candidate.

Why Charles Dickens Separated from His Wife—His Own Statement.

From the Boston Folio.

The great novelist prefaces his letter as follows: "You have not only my full permission to show this, but I beg you to show this to any one who has been misled into doing me wrong." We therefore take pleasure in presenting his statement to our readers:

MY DEAR ——: Mrs. DICKENS and I have lived unhappily together for many years. Hardly any one who has known us intimately can fail to have known that we are, in all respects of character and temperament, wonderfully unsuited to each other. I suppose that no two people, not vicious in themselves, ever were joined together, who had greater difficulty in understanding one another, or who had less in common. An attached woman servant, (more friend to both of us than a servant,) who lived with us sixteen years, and is now married, and who was, and still is, in Mrs. DICKENS' confidence and mine, who had the closest familiar experience of this unhappiness in London, in the country, in France, in Italy, wherever we have been, year after year, month after month, week after week, day after day, will bear testimony to this.

Nothing has, on many occasions, stood between us and a separation, but Mrs. DICKENS' sister, GEORGINE HOGARTH. From the age of 15 she has devoted herself to our house and children. She has been their playmate, nurse, instructress, friend, protectress, adviser and companion. In the manly consideration toward Mrs. DICKENS which I owe to my wife, I will merely remark of her that the peculiarity of her character has thrown all the care of the children on some one else. I do not know—I cannot by any stretch of fancy imagine—what would have become of them but for this aunt who has grown up with them, to whom they are devoted, and who has sacrificed the best part of her youth and life to them.

She has remonstrated, reasoned, suffered and toiled, and come again to prevent a separation between Mrs. DICKENS and me. Mrs. DICKENS has often expressed to her her sense of her affectionate care and devotion in the house—never more strongly than within the last twelve months.

For some years past Mrs. DICKENS has been in the habit of representing to me that it would be better for her to go away and live apart; that her always increasing estrangement made a mental disorder under which she sometimes labors; more, that she felt herself unfit for the life she had led and my wish, and that she should be far better away. I have uniformly replied that she must bear our misfortune and fight the fight out to the end; that the children were the first consideration, and that I feared they must bind us together "in appearance."

At length, within these three weeks, it was suggested to me by FORSTER, that even for their sakes, it would surely be better to reconstruct and rearrange the unhappy home. I empowered him to treat with Mrs. DICKENS as the friend of both of us for one and twenty years. Mrs. DICKENS wished to add, on her part, MARK LEMON, and did so. On Saturday last LEMON wrote to FORSTER that Mrs. DICKENS "gratefully and thankfully accepted" the terms I proposed to her. Of the pecuniary part of them, I will only say that I believe they are as generous as if Mrs. DICKENS were a lady of distinction and I a man of fortune. The remaining parts of them are easily described—my eldest boy to live with Mrs. DICKENS and to take care of her; my eldest girl to keep my house; both my girls and all my children but the eldest son to live with me in continued companionship of their AUNT GEORGINE, for whom they have all the tenderest affections that I have ever seen among young, people, and who has a higher claim (as I have often declared, for many years,) upon my affection, respect and gratitude than anybody in this world.

I hope that no one who may become acquainted with what I write here, can possibly be so cruel and unjust as to put any misconstruction on our separation so far. My elder children all understand it perfectly, and all accept it as inevitable.

There is not a shadow of doubt or concealment among us. My eldest son and I are one as to it all.

Two wicked persons, who should have spoken very different of me, in consideration of earned respect and gratitude, have (as I am told, and, indeed, to my personal knowledge,) coupled with this separation the name of a young lady for whom I have a great attachment and regard. I will not repeat the name—I honor it too much. Upon my soul and honor, there is not on this earth a more virtuous and spotless creature than that young lady. I know her to be innocent and pure, and as good as my own daughters.

Further, I am quite sure that Mrs. DICKENS, having received this assurance from me, must now believe it, in the respect I know her to have for me, and in the perfect confidence I know her, in her better moments, to repose in my truthfulness.

In this head, again, there is not a shadow of doubt or concealment between my children and me. All is open and plain among us, as though we were brothers and sisters. They are perfectly certain that I would not deceive them, and the confidence among us is without a fear. C. D.

A Murder in Maryland—A Young Man Kills his Uncle.

From the Baltimore American, Sept. 27.

On Friday night, about 11 o'clock, a most horrible murder was committed in Baltimore County, the victim being Mr. SAMUEL BURTON, residing on the Harford road, about one mile from the Copper Factory on the Gunpowder River, and eleven miles from this city. The alleged murderer is named WILLIAM BROWN, formerly of Terre Haute, Ind., who served in the army, and shortly after the war came to this State, marrying a niece of Mr. BURTON. The accounts reaching this city of the affair represent that about the time above stated BROWN and BURTON became engaged in an altercation at the house of the latter, when the former knocked BURTON down and dragged him into the yard. He then took up an axe with which he almost completely severed the head of Mr. BURTON, and struck him several times on the left side of the body, cutting into his heart and lungs. The wife of BROWN and her aunt, Mrs. KEZIAH CHENOWITH, witnessed the assault. BROWN, not content with what he had done, threatened their lives, and they immediately ran off to the woods, where they remained until after daylight the next morning, when they returned to the house. They found BROWN still there, but soon after he left, and they immediately proceeded to the nearest Magistrate to give information of the murder. An inquest was held by the Justice, and yesterday morning the body was interred. Information of the murder was communicated on Saturday to the Police authorities of this city by direction of Sheriff BALDWIN, of the county. Detectives RICHARDS and PONTIER proceeded yesterday morning to the scene of the murder, and with other officers and citizens scoured the country round about for the murderer, who so far has eluded their vigilance. A number of members of a cavalry company of the county also participated in the search, which is still kept up. Mrs. BROWN and Mrs. CHENOWITH were taken into custody by Sheriff BALDWIN as accessories to the murder and lodged in the jail at Towsontown, being allowed by the Sheriff all the necessary accommodations consistent with their safe keeping until all the facts of the murder are ascertained.

Mr. BURTON was a bachelor, about 60 years, and was a highly respected citizen of the Eleventh District. There are various reports of the cause of the quarrel between him and BROWN, one attributing it to a desire on the part of BROWN to get immediate possession of a tract of land, valued at $600, while another report is that they quarreled in relation to the will of Mr. BURTON.

The Methodist "Book Concern."

From the Worcester Spy, Sept. 25.

The New-York Evening Post advises the Methodists to sell out their "Book Concern," stop their official papers, and let their whole publishing business pass into private hands. We don't think this advice will be taken, and we doubt whether the Post really understands the matter of which it speaks. Certainly, its representation concerning the "irregularities" said to have been discovered in the management of their Book Concern, furnishes no valid reason for such a change. But the Post is very sure, that "the business affairs of the denomination ought hereafter to be placed entirely in the hands of trained business men." There is no matter in regard to which more rank nonsense is talked, now and then, than this about "trained business men." No man succeeds in the management of business without natural capacity and aptitude for the work. Where these exist, they will contrive to acquire the requisite training; where they do not exist, no amount of training can supply the want of them. A very considerable number of those who would claim to be "trained business men," are quite unfit to be trusted in charge of any large business enterprise.

The Methodist "Book Concern" has, for eighty years, been managed almost wholly by Methodist clergymen; and no other important business in the country can be named that has been more completely successful. It was established, we believe, in a very humble way, in 1789, for the publication of Methodist books which were distributed and sold, throughout the denomination, chiefly by means of the preachers. The business grew and prospered, gradually, the profits being used, at first, to increase and extend it. The managers were honest, skillful, and zealous to make it an efficient aid to the labors of the ministry of their Church. At length it became very noticeably an important and flourishing publishing house, issuing besides the books, several Methodist periodicals. The managers and editors have always been appointed by the official authorities of the denomination, from among the regular clergymen; and it has continued to prosper until, at the present time, its property, including the branches, is worth between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000. It has a large income which is used for denominational purposes, the needy widows and orphan children of the preachers not being forgotten in the appropriations. The history of this "Book Concern" is honorable to the Methodists, and especially to the leading Methodist preachers who brought it into existence and made it what it is now. There is nothing in the history of its operations to furnish a reason either for selling it, as the Post advises, or changing the management that has been so successful.

We make this business establishment a topic, in our columns, because it has been reported, recently, that some fraud or "irregularity" connected with its operations, has been detected by its managers. Never before, during the eighty years of its existence, so far as we know, has there been mention or suspicion of anything like fraudulent irregularity in the affairs; and the "irregularities" reported now are

It is divided into plots of various sizes suitable for gentlemen's residences, with room for stables, outbuildings, &c., &c., and is already attracting considerable attention.

A new paper, devoted to real estate interests, called The Auctioneer, has recently been introduced in the market. IMPORTANT SALE OF 250 VERY DESIRABLE BUILDING LOTS AT LINDEN, N. J.

By order of Meeker Wood, Esq., and C. Hussa, Esq.

Forty minutes from New-York by the New-Jersey Railroad, and two miles from Elizabeth, a city of 30,000 inhabitants.

Linden is one of the most desirable points as a place of residence on the line of the New-Jersey Railroad. The Company has recently erected a costly and attractive station, and within the past few years Messrs. FERDINAND BLANCKE, MEEKER WOOD, and many other prominent New-Yorkers have built a great number of neat and ornamental residences, that are all occupied by gentlemen doing business in the City.

The lots to be sold by A. D. MELLICK, Jr., & BRO. ARE IMMEDIATELY AT THE STATION, (the land on which it stands having been given by MEEKER WOOD, Esq.,) and in the heart of all these improvements. THE POST OFFICE IS ON THE PROPERTY, also the Linden Hotel; in fact, the property is unexceptionable in every particular, THE STREETS BEING HANDSOMELY GRADED, and not a lot that will be offered is five minutes' walk from the station, and the nearest lot is not as many seconds.

The property adjoins the land of Ferdinand Blancke, Esq., who will take pleasure in giving parties full particulars in regard to this most desirable piece of lotted property ever offered at auction on the line of the New-Jersey Railroad.

Terms remarkably easy.

Ten per cent. on the day of sale, and $10 monthly thereafter.

Special train will leave the foot of Cortlandt-st. at 11 A. M.

Collation on the arrival of the train.

Captain Young will preserve order.

200 BUILDING AND VILLA PLOTS, SITUATE AT WHITE PLAINS.

JOHNSON & MILLER will positively sell at auction, without limit or reservation, at 12 o'clock, on the premises, on TUESDAY, Oct. 5, 1869,

200 CHOICE LOTS AND VILLA PLOTS,

Finely located in the heart of the beautiful and growing village of White Plains, within a few minutes' walk of the depot, and in close proximity to stores, churches and schools. This splendid property is most sightly situated on high ground, commanding fine views, near the most prominent avenue in the place, adjacent to most elegant and costly structures, and is one of the most desirable sections for residences in the village. White Plains is 23 miles from 26th-st., New-York, and is accessible by numerous trains on Harlem Railroad daily. It is the first station beyond New-York at which express trains stop. The New-York, Housatonic and Northern Railroad will soon be built, and the splendid depot erected in the immediate vicinity of this property. No village in Westchester County possesses greater educational and social advantages. Its proverbial healthfulness, its beautiful avenues, its handsome public edifices, elegant private dwellings and its refined society, render it a most attractive and desirable place of residence. Every year increases its rapid growth and prosperity. During the past few months great improvements have been made in opening GRAND BOULEVARDS, (100 feet wide,) which have their termini here, and which, when completed, will afford the finest drives of any place in this country. The property is ready for immediate improvement; building avenue and streets are now opened and graded; seven nice cottages are now in process of construction. Title indisputable.

The property has been in the possession of the Hatfield family nearly 100 years, and is now for the first time offered at public sale.

Departure of train—The train will leave Harlem Railroad depot, corner of 26th-st. and 4th-av., at 10 o'clock A. M., precisely.

ALSO AT SAME PLACE,

SALE OF THE UNITED STATES ARMORY AND OTHER GROUNDS AT HARPER'S FERRY, WEST VA., AND VICINITY.

ORDNANCE OFFICE,
WASHINGTON, Sept. 23, 1869.

In pursuance of the act approved Dec. 15, 1868, and by direction of the Secretary of War, the property of the United States at Harper's Ferry, West Va., and vicinity, will be sold, by public auction, on TUESDAY, the 30th day of November, 1869, commencing at 10 o'clock A. M. and continuing from day to day until all is sold.

The value of this property for manufacturing purposes is too well known to render it necessary to describe it herein, full description of the same is being prepared, and will be sent to persons who may wish it, as soon as it is printed, upon their applying by letter to this office.

The property will be sold in lots. The first will include the Musket Factory, embracing a strip of land running to the western boundary, on the Potomac, the Armory Canal, and water power of the river. The walls of two large buildings are standing on this ground, and the foundations of several others; and the water wheels, with gearing, and the flumes are in almost perfect order. Three of them are turbines, of the most approved kind, and the others are mostly cast iron with wooden buckets.

The second will be the site of the Rifle Factory and water power on the Shenandoah, the buildings upon which have been destroyed, but the canal is in good order.

The third will be the Shenandoah Ferry, with a tract of 68 acres of land on the south, and a lot on the Harper's Ferry shore opposite.

The fourth will be the perpetual right to cut and remove wood from a tract of 1,400 acres mountain land across the Shenandoah.

The fifth will be the right to dig iron ore from a tract of about 1,400 acres of land known as Friend's Ore Bank, acquired by deed from Henry Lee and others.

The remainder, consisting of houses and lots in the town, will be sold lot by lot.

The Government will convey to the purchasers, after payment shall have been made in full, all its right and title to the property, which is believed to be perfect in every case.

The terms of sale, prescribed by law, are a credit of one and two years, the purchasers to give bond and security for the payment of the purchase money; and these terms must be complied with within ten days after the sale.

A map, showing the metes and bounds of the Harper's Ferry property, will be exhibited at the time of sale.

The Government reserves the right to withdraw any or all lots offered, if the bids are not satisfactory.

A. B. DYER,
Brevet Major-General, Chief Ordnance.

NOTICE TO DELINQUENTS.

Persons who purchased lots in 1868, and have not fully paid for them, are hereby notified that if they pay what is due before the day of sale, the lots will be deeded to them, otherwise they will be resold.

THE BURDELL MURDER.

SECRETS OF THE HOUSE OF CRIME.

Singular Discoveries by the Inmates.

Articles of Wearing Apparel Found in a Chimney—Action of the Police—The Premises Again Under Seizure.

There is a superstition as widespread and as ancient as the human race that a fatality clings to the scene of murder, and the Burdell mansion, No. 31 Bond-street, has for years seemed to strengthen the illusion and clothe it in the robes of verity. The mysterious and awful crime there committed is yet fresh in the public mind; nor can the present generation of dwellers in the metropolis ever forget how Dr. HARVEY BURDELL, seated at his library table, in the presumed security of his home, on the evening of the 30th of January, twelve years ago, was stolen upon by an assassin, who approached from behind, and with a dagger stabbed him until he was dead. Nor can our citizens ever forget the intensely dramatic scenes attending the investigation of the murder, and how, after months of patient sifting of the evidence, the murderer succeeded in eluding the penalty of the law, although there was a general impression, which yet remains, that had the Scottish law prevailed with us the verdict in the case would have been "Not Proven," instead of "Not Guilty."

Probably no tragedy ever elicited so much feeling or became so great a sensation, and the doubts that surrounded the identity of the criminal naturally resulted in the engendering of numerous theories, some of them sensible, but more of them wild as to who was the assassin. And after the full investigation and the lapse of time had made it certain that no person could ever be convicted of the crime, the public curiosity as naturally took refuge in pretended discoveries of new evidence. Not long ago this latter weakness took the shape of a revelation of a pseudo detective that the notorious JEFFARDS had confessed some connection with the affair, but as the revelation did not come until after that wayward criminal had been laid in his grave, the public was skeptical, and the Burdell murder was as much a mystery as before and as prolific of theories and conjectures as ever.

And during all these years while the crime has been discussed and the identity of the criminal canvassed, the house where the crime was committed has shared the contempt. The curse of blood has seemed to be upon it; the chilling shadow of a great crime thrown athwart it, in which the inmates lived uneasily, shrinkingly. No business thrived in it; no good fortune attended it. There was no pretence that the place was haunted, but it was the victim of the universal superstition. Two years ago a Mr. and Mrs. BLAKE, then doing a thriving business in Canal-street, hired the Burdell mansion, where they opened a fashionable millinery establishment, intending to combine with it the letting of furnished rooms. The venture was a total failure from the first. Few patrons came to the house, and while no lodger could be induced to occupy the room which was the actual scene of the murder, those who from time to time dared to try the other apartments, went shuderingly about the house for a few days, and then left to find more congenial surroundings.

The lessees were thus left with ample time to rummage the old house, and to that thorough though aimless searching, and to an accident that lately occurred to one of the chimnies, was due a story that floated through a narrow circle for some days past, and which seemed to promise that new light was to be thrown upon the horrible murder, in which the assassin would at last stand revealed. The story was that a high wind blew one of the chimnies down, and that some of the bricks falling inward had borne with them into the fireplace of one of the rooms some important papers, a gentleman's boot, and two shirts of peculiar texture—one an undershirt, and the other of linen. Last night the story reached Captain HEDDEN, of the Fifteenth Precinct, and he deeming it to be worthy of some attention called at the house, taking with him Detective PHILIP REILLEY. The officers there investigated the matter, and this is what they learned:

One of the attic rooms, for lack of a ceiling, has the rafters exposed, and one day several months ago Mr. BLAKE, in an idle search, found a bundle of newspapers packed away under the eaves. In this bundle he found a paper which he describes as a survey of some property belonging to GEO. CUNNINGHAM, but he can give no more minute description of it. Nor can any better ever be obtained, for considering the paper to be of no value, he put it into the waste bag, and it long ago was sold, with other refuse material, to an itinerant rag dealer. It was also ascertained by the officers that a high wind had dislodged some bricks from the top of one of the chimneys, which, falling inward, had rested in the fireplace of a room on the floor next below the attic, and had brought with them a boot and one shirt, but that was long subsequent to the finding of the papers. The boot was of fine quality, and evidently that of a man, but remarkably small size, and the shirt was a merino of very fine texture, and cross-barred in different colors. It was very sooty, and upon one side was so scorched that it crumbled at a touch. But Mr. BLAKE evidently saw nothing extraordinary in a boot and a shirt tumbling out of his chimney, for he says that both articles, after lying about the house for some days, finally found their way into the rubbish-box and were irrevocably lost.

Captain HEDDEN was grieviously disappointed in failing to obtain the articles so singularly discovered, for he believes that they might have afforded the most satisfactory proofs of the identity of the criminal. Whatever value they may have had, however, in assisting to unmask the long hidden assassin has been utterly lost by the thoughtlessness of the finder, but the discovery has stimulated the Police to renewed effort, and the house of crime and mystery is to be subjected to another exhaustive search to-day.

The Stabbing Affair at Hamilton Park.

In the TIMES of yesterday was a report of an affray which occurred at a picnic at LANDMANN'S Hamilton Park, on Saturday last, during which WILLIAM P. O'BRIEN was severely stabbed. A man named named EDWARD BUCKLEY, was arrested at the time on suspicion. The case was given to Officer CANAVIN, of the Second Precinct, to investigate, and after the lapse of two days he succeeded in arresting another man, named MCLAUGHLIN, who was employed in a telegraph office at No. 11 Broad-street. At first MCLAUGHLIN denied his guilt, but soon afterward admitted to the officer that he inflicted the wound. He also promised to give up the knife with which the deed was committed, and upon the officer returning with him to Broad-street, the prisoner took the weapon from his desk and delivered it to the officer. The Coroner will investigate the case to-day.

Cutlery to be Presented to President Grant.

President GRANT is to be presented with an elegant set of cutlery, the gift of the workmen of the Lamson & Goodnow Manufacturing Company, of Shelburne Falls, Mass. It is now on exhibition at BROWNE & SPAULDING'S, on Broadway. As a specimen of taste, skill and "style" it does exceeding credit to the workmen. It is of temper and finish equal to the finest imported cutlery, and has the advantage of being American in design as well as in manufacture. The set consists of sixty-two pieces—two dozen dinner knives, two dozen dessert knives, half a dozen carving knives and forks and a pair of steels. The forks are two-pronged—a delicate compliment, we suppose, to the General's recollections of "Auld lang Syne." Half the set are in pearl handles, and half in ivory, the design of both being the same. The handles are gracefully shaped and delicately carved in American maple leaves. The American spread eagle is engraved on the blades, which are joined to the handles with heavy bands of gold. On each blade, below the spread eagle, is the inscription, "U. S. Grant, President of the United States." The case containing the set is an elegant affair, and quite in keeping, being composed of two kinds of American wood—butternut and birdseye maple; it is fitted up with scarlet velvet inside, with a compartment for each article. We have no doubt but that President GRANT will appreciate this presentation, not more for its intrinsic value than for the spirit which prompted the workmen to offer it.

AMERICAN INSTITUTE FAIR.

The Machinery Department—A Valuable Collection.

The machinery department of the American Institute exhibition this year is admitted to be the best that has ever characterized the Fairs given by this organization, and is well worthy of being closely investigated by visitors, especially such as have a talent for mechanism. The Rink, large as it is, being too small to admit of placing the various machines in the body of the building, accommodations for exhibiting them were extemporized by the addition of another building, and in this are placed the various new mechanical inventions and other apparatus that require to be operated by steam power. To supply the power necessary for moving the vast mass of machinery here aggregated there are five steam engines ranged side by side, which in themselves form no inconsiderable part of the exhibition, and the operations of which are regarded with much interest. They are:

1. A Rider engine, of fifty-horse power, constructed at the Delamater Iron Works, foot of West Thirteenth-street, which, by its beauty of motion and its possession of the latest improved attachments, speaks in terms of high praise for the establishment wherein it was built. 2. A vertical engine, of twenty-five-horse power, built at the Albany-street Iron Works in this City. This seems to be a pigmy compared with the Rider, alongside of which it is placed; but the ease with which it works shows that it is fully capable of doing all that is claimed for it. 3. A Corliss engine, manufactured by WILLIAM A. HARRIS, of Providence, R. I., occupies a position next to the little vertical motor, and is better finished than any of its competitors. It works solely on the expansive principle, and is regulated by cutting off the steam at the main valve, the load determining, through the regulator, when the supply shall be cut off. This engine is of eighty-horse power. 4. An engine of excellent construction, and which operates with a smoothness that pronounces it at first sight to be a superior one, is that built by the Fishkill Landing Machine Company. It is of forty-horse power. 5. Besides these four now in operation, there is being put up a large engine of eighty-horse power, made at the Hope Iron Works, Providence, R. I. This is the largest engine of the five that supply the motive power, and when set in motion will doubtless give a good account of itself. Here, then, we have a total of 275-horse power, (195 of which is already operating,) and, ranged as the engines are, side by side, an excellent opportunity is afforded the visitor of comparing and contrasting them one with the other, and of studying the relative merits of each. The power, it will be seen, is ample for driving even more machinery than is now in operation.

Of course there is much in this department that is not especially attractive to the multitude; for, taking mankind promiscuously, but few have any general idea of mechanism; and much less are the majority able to understand the intricacies and the minutiæ of machinery. To the greater number of visitors this department doubtless presents simply the appearance of a heterogeneous mass of shafting, belting, cog-wheels and other appliances of mechanism revolving and rotating, while the buzz of saws, the splash of streams of water which are being forced through the delivery nozzles of the many pumps on exhibition, and the other noises and the confusion which necessarily are found here, tend to make the machinery room not only uninteresting, but positively disagreeable to many. Yet of all the departments of the Fair, this is really the most instructive, and the one which, above all others, the visitor should inspect and try to understand, if he would keep pace with the advance of the age.

Carpenters and woodworkers generally will be interested in PALMER'S iron plane, exhibited by Mr. D. S. BINNS. This implement will certainly supersede the use of wood planes when its superior advantages are fully understood. It is more accurate in working face, less liable to wear, more easily adjusted to any degree of fineness of shaving, is no heavier than the old wooden plane, works very easily and is just the thing for fine work of every kind, and for tough "easy" timber, which it smooths perfectly. It saves time, money, muscle, and, to the neat mechanic, "vexation of spirit." It costs no more than the old wooden plane, and in every way more preferable.

GRAY & WOOD'S improved combination steam planer (the Woodworth and Daniels planers combined) has already gained a world-wide reputation. Its operation is well worthy of investigation.

There are many varieties of steam and hand pumps on exhibition, among them the Knowles patent, without cranks or fly-wheel, and dispensing with the use of the starting bar; the Navarro patent, constructed on a new rotary principle, the least laborious way of raising and forcing liquids; BEHREN'S rotary engine and pump, claimed to be capable of raising or forcing water or other liquids at a temperature of 200 degrees, to preserve a vacuum of 28 inches, and to be as economical as the best reciprocating pump; HAEDICK'S patent double-acting steam-pump and fire-engine, peculiarly adapted for mining purposes; the Woodward patent improved safety steam-pump and fire-engine, for washing ore beds, pumping liquor, mash, acids, &c.; LIBBY & DUC'S patent improved mining and wrecking pumps, manufactured at the Continental Iron Works, Greenpoint, L. I.; the American submerged double-acting, non-freezing force-pump, for wells and cisterns; and many others of improved construction.

In the matter of saws there are CLEMSEN'S "adjustable tooth" patent, requiring no "gumming," and very little filing, simple in construction and operation; HOAG'S self-feeding hand-sliding saw machine, with patent foot-jig attachment, a great labor saver; MCCHESNEY'S improved jig or scroll saw; J. T. PLASS' patent safety hand saw, claimed to be perfectly safe to the operator, and fully protecting the blade from injury; S. A. WOODS' saw gumming and sharpening machine, by which a saw may be sharpened with one-third the labor usually expended for that purpose.

HASSENFLUG BROTHERS, of this City, exhibit a new motive power, claimed to be the greatest in existence for every machine where power is wanted; and QUIMBY & Co. exhibit a new treadle motion, without crank or cutter, of universal application to the mechanical work table for turning lathes, saws, and to hay cutters, fanning mills, and other agricultural machinery.

In the same department there is also BAXTER'S portable cylindrical steam engine, in which the heating surfaces are all below the water-line; hence there is no liability to burn out the boiler. The same exhibitor has also an adjustable "S" wrench, constructed on a new principle, and claimed to have greater capacity and greater strength than any other kind of wrench.

Also, ROOT'S patent rotary hand blowers for blacksmith's forges, which produces a force blast that can be varied from the slightest breath to the strongest blast required for heavy work, and may be operated either by hand or by power; HUNTOON'S patent governor, for stationary and marine engines, the merit of which is that it is wholly uninfluenced by the varying pressure of steam in the engine's boiler; STEVENS' parallel vise, adapted to all kinds of work, variable or uniform, light or heavy; the improved emery grinder, manufactured by the American Twist Drill Company, of Woonsocket, R. I., running two wheels at once, whereby the rough grinding and polishing may be performed on the same machine; TUPPER & Co.'s patent sectional grate bars, for steam boats, steamships, locomotives and other furnaces; BLAKE'S patent belt studs, for fastening rubber or leather belts; BOUGHTON'S graduating transparent oil cups, graduating lubricator and loose valve compression gauge cocks; MAYS & BLISS' lever, drop and patent screw presses for working metals; the NAVARRO automatic measuring faucet or tap, by the use of which time and money may be saved, and requiring no measures for molasses, heavy oils, varnish, &c., manufactured by the Emery Rotary Machine Company, of this City.

Prominent among the machines on exhibition in this department is S. R. KROM'S quartz crushers and patent dry ore concentrators, which separate metals from the ore by means of air. The mechanical combinations are extremely simple, and the machines durable. A continuous self-delivery of ore on one side and "tailings" on the other is effected, the only attention necessary being to keep the hopper supplied with ore. The power of one man is sufficient to operate a machine that will concentrate about one ton per hour. This is a new and very valuable addition, which separates the worthless matter from ore with ease, precision and rapidity. The machines are now beginning to be extensively used in the mines of Colorado and California.

Everybody who visits the Fair is desirous of witnessing the operation of LYALL'S Positive Motion Loom, about which so much has been said and written, and which is destined to create a perfect revolution in the manufacture of cloths. It is placed on the right hand side of the lower end of the main aisle, and is the observed of all observers. This loom will weave a piece of cloth or other fabric six yards and a quarter in width, being the largest loom in the world. Its advantages are: The unlimited scope of the shuttle; the absence of friction on the yarn, thus avoiding any wear of the warps; the weft is not subject to sudden pulls in starting, and may be of the most delicate texture, regardless of the width of the fabric; any desired speed of operation may be attained; the "picking stick" heretofore of universal use, is entirely dispensed with; the shuttle being carried through the warps is, with all other parts of the machine, held, controled, and acted upon by a direct and continuous connection with the motive power, thus obviating the liability of a smash or injury to the reed. This loom dispenses also with the necessity for the skilled labor heretofore required in the manufacture of silks and other fine fabrics, and makes the cost of weaving very wide goods no greater than that of narrow cloths, giving a gain of from fifteen to twenty per cent. in the production, especially on ordinary cotton and woolen fabrics. The Scientific American says of the manner in which the shuttle is operated:

"Instead of complicating the loom, this invention has actually simplified it, reducing the number of parts, and introducing no motions or attachments liable to get out of repair. It is to the loom what the link motion is to locomotive engineering, or the compass to navigation. It substitutes certainty for uncertainty, and thus lays the foundation for future development in the textile arts hitherto unattainable. Radical in its character, it may be compared to the invention which placed the eye of the sewing-machine needle at the point, and like that invention, it will, in its proper field, be likely to produce results impossible at present to estimate at their true value."

The loom is daily in operation, and a full explanation of its movements is given by a polite attendant.

COMMON COUNCIL.

Board of Aldermen.

This Board met at 2 P. M. yesterday, Mr. COMAN in the chair.

A resolution was adopted to increase the salary of the third clerk in the Street Department to $3,500.

Resolutions were also adopted to pave with Belgian pavement portions of Tenth, West Houston, Thirty-second and Thirty-first streets; and with Nicolson pavement Twenty-fourth, Pine, Fourteenth, Fiftieth, Fifty-first and Fifty-sixth streets.

A quantity of routine business was transacted, after which the Board adjourned to Thursday next.

Board of Assistant Aldermen.

This Board met at 2 P. M. yesterday, Mr. MONAGHAN in the chair.

A resolution to increase the salary of the General Clerk of the Board was laid over.

The resolution from the other Board expressing sympathy with the Cuban revolutionists was concurred in.

The salaries of the Sergeant-at-Arms and the Assistant Sergeant-at-Arms of this Board, and the Assistant Sergeant-at-Arms of the Board of Aldermen, were increased to $2,500 per annum, in spite of the protest of Mr. PINCKNEY, who said that in passing the resolution they were acting contrary to law, and that in his opinion no increase of the salaries of these officers was required.

The following streets and avenues were ordered to be paved with Belgian pavement:

Chrystie-street, from Division to Grand; Twenty-second-street, from Eleventh-avenue to the Hudson River; Ninth-avenue, from Fourteenth to Twenty-sixth-street; One Hundred and Seventeenth-street, from Fourth-avenue to the East River.

A donation of $8,928 84 was made to St. Patrick's Cathedral to pay an assessment.

Mr. STEPHEN ROBERTS then called up a resolution to pay an assessment of $594 27 against the Mission Church in Second-avenue, which was voted down.

Mr. ROBERTS remarked that when wealthy establishments like St. Patrick's Cathedral wanted donations they could get them, but when small and poor churches needed them they were refused.

Mr. ROBERTS called the resolution up again, and it was again voted down.

The Board shortly afterward adjourned to Thursday next.

The North Atlantic Squadron.

Admiral POOR, the recently assigned commander of the North Atlantic Squadron, went on board of the steamer Powhatan on Friday, on which he at once raised his flag. He sailed from this port for Key West yesterday.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

New-York.

An examination was held yesterday, by Justice DOWLING, in the case of JOHN W. GOULD, the Wall-street broker, who is accused of outraging the person of MRS. ANNA MEAD, of No. 73 President-street, Brooklyn. The complainant was cross-examined at length by counsel for the defence, who sought to damage her reputation by a series of singular questions. The examination will be resumed at an early day.

PATRICK COSGROVE, proprietor of a sailors' boarding-house at No. 23 Cherry-street, and an alleged confederate named JOHN P. THURSTON, were arraigned before Justice DOWLING, at the Tombs yesterday, to answer a charge of having perpetrated a heartless swindle on four unsophisticated seamen, and depriving them of $750—fourteen months' hard earnings. The names of the sailors are JOHN JORDAN, CHARLES WOODCOCK, A. P. MINCLER and CHARLES F. JANSEN. The money was obtained by means of forging an order for the wages. The prisoners were held for examination.

The public is familiar with the fraud alleged to have been committed by MOTT BEDELL, who was arrested some time ago upon a complaint made in behalf of BERTHOLD & THOMPSON, St. Louis, who had been defrauded of whisky valued at $6,314. It was announced in the TIMES of Sunday last that one GEORGE F. CLARK had had been arrested for alleged complicity in this offence, and yesterday he was brought up for examination before Justice DODGE at the Jefferson Market Police Court, and was committed, in default of $2,500 bail, for trial at the General Sessions.

JAMES DEMPSEY was arraigned yesterday before Justice DODGE, at the Jefferson Market Police Court, on a charge of stealing a horse and wagon valued at $500, from ALONZO DUTCH, No. 308 West Twenty-second-street. The prisoner denied the theft, saying that he had found the horse wandering loose in the street; but he was committed in default of $1,000 bail for trial at the General Sessions.

At about 6 o'clock last evening, a fire occurred on the first floor of No. 75 Mercer-street, occupied by HALOW KATZ, leather dealer. The fire was extinguished with a few pails of water, and before much damage had been done to either stock or building, but a valuable oil painting was destroyed.

The Caunstadt Festival was commenced by the Germans of this City, yesterday at Jones' Wood. Upward of 5,000 persons were present, and the festivities were of the most attractive character. The celebration will be continued until Wednesday evening.

A very large meeting of journeymen barbers was held last evening at Germania Hall, corner of Third-avenue and Eighteenth-street, to take steps toward demanding shorter hours of labor, and if this be not granted to strike in a body. It was resolved to demand that a reduction be made to the following hours of daily labor: From 7 A. M. till 8 P. M., on all week days except Saturdays, when the working hours should be from 7 A. M. till 10 P. M.; on Sundays from 7 A. M. till noon.

The lower story of the new Fish Market at the foot of Fulton-street will be completed and opened on Thursday, and the second story will be finished next week.

JAMES THOMPSON, of No. 129 Thompson-street, was arraigned before Justice DOWLING yesterday at the Tombs, to answer a charge of stealing a watch, valued at $40, from the room of CHARLES PAXSON, at No. 612 Broadway. As the prisoner was the only one who had access to the room besides the owner, he was committed for trial.

Last evening Mr. LUCKER, Vice-President of the Philadelphia Convention, addressed a meeting of the Barbers' Union Association at No. 200 Third-avenue, recommending them to co-operate on the Trades' Union plan.

The United States ship Frolic, which arrived at the Navy-yard last Friday, is to undergo a general overhaul, after which she will be stationed off the Battery as flag-ship of the Port Admiral, to be ready for sea at a moment's notice.

Yesterday morning NATHAN NORRIS and CHARLES MCKAY, gas-fitters, were examining a gas-pipe at the corner of Pine and Nassau streets, for the purpose of discovering the place of a leak, when the gas exploded, and both men were seriously burned about the head. They were taken to the New-street Police Station, where their wounds were dressed, and they were then taken to their homes by the Police.
